MISSOURI'S THIRTY-EIGHTH FAIR BE OPENED SATURDAY

PROSPECTS FOR A GREAT EXPOSITION ARE EXCELLENT

Children Under Twelve Be Admitted Free The First Day

AIR COOLING FOR THE COLISEUM

Interesting Exhibits and Amusement For All Be Provided

Missouri's thirty-eighth annual state fair will open Saturday morning with prospects of a bigger and better fair than for many years. A favorable growing season has made it possible to have more agriculture exhibits, and in almost every department there is an increase in entries.

Charles W. Green, secretary of the fair, refused livestock entries from three different exhibitors this morning. The date for making entries has passed and it was necessary to refuse them. Mr. Green also received a message from the Boonville drum and bugle corps stating they would participate in the American Legion program Sunday, and one from Monett asking permission for the Monett band to play on the grounds some day during the week.

Air Cooling In Coliseum

Visitors in the coliseum are going to be very much pleased to know that the coliseum is air cooled this year. Thirty air cooling units, operated by cold water, have been installed in the south and west sections of the large building, generating two thousand cubic feet of cold air a minute. The system is in operation today and will be during the fair, making it much more comfortable for the judging that will be done during the day and the horseshows at night.

The house that will be crashed by Captain F. F. Frakes, airplane pilot, during the thrill program Saturday, has been constructed on the infield. "It isn't just a sham house," said Mr. Green today, "it is built of brand new lumber 2 by fours, two by sixes, white pine lumber."

The fair grounds will be open all day and tonight, but gates will be closed Saturday morning except to those paying admissions. The carnival company is expected to arrive this afternoon and may be in operation tonight.

Free Day to Children

Saturday morning entries will be in place, buildings open for visitors, and the fair actually started. All children 12 years of age and under will be admitted free, and a special program for the children, with a number of awards to be made, will take place in front of the grandstand at 10:30 o'clock.

Attendants at the fair are going to have an opportunity to watch work in progress for the San Francisco International Exposition and the New York World's Fair in 1939. This work was started some month ago, and is continuing even though the fair is in progress.

The churches are again in charge of the Hall of Religion, where services will be conducted daily. Rev. O. J. Rumpf, pastor of the Immanuel Evangelical church is chairman of the committee in charge.

The checker contest starts Sunday morning and the horseshoe pitching contest on Wednesday.

Amusement For All

The fair management has arranged entertainment for every minute of the day and night, and for persons of every age. The loud speakers will make it possible for the grandstand entertainments to be carried over the grounds.

Saturday and Sunday nights a chorus of fifty Sedalians, directed by Mrs. E. F. Yancey, will participate in the WHB program to be presented in front of the grandstand.

THOUSANDS OF GALLONS OF BEER INTO SEWER

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 19.—(AP)—Fifty-five thousand, eight hundred gallons of "green" beer foamed down the sewer here today—and not a pretzel in sight.

The beer had been kept in vats since the Midwest Brewing company sought reorganization under the federal bankruptcy law a year ago.

Seth S. Lacy liquidating trustee, received permission from Federal Judge Albert L. Reeves last night to "abandon assets" when reorganization efforts were dropped.

PLAN INSANITY PLEA FOR RICHETTI

By The Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 19—A new move was disclosed today in an effort to save Adam Richetti, convicted for the Kansas City Union Station massacre, from death in the state's new lethal gas chamber.

Ralph S. Latshaw, Richetti's attorney, said that as soon as the supreme court mandate affirming the death sentence is received he would institute insanity proceedings to stay the execution. Latshaw contends that his client went insane after conviction.

POLITICAL PLUMS FOR THE SUDETEN GERMANS AIM

Czechs Would Accord Them In Toublesome Minority Issue

(By Alvin J. Steinkopf)

PRAHA, Aug. 19—(AP)—Premier Milan Hodza today disclosed that the Czechoslovak government would give choice political plums in an attempt to pacify its clamorous, autony-seeking Sudeten German minority.

The premier made the disclosure in a conference with Viscount Runciman, unofficial British mediator in the troublesome minority issue.

Lord Runciman's conference with Hodza followed his meeting for the first time yesterday with Konrad Henlein, leader of the 3,500,000 Nazi-supported Sudeten Germans. Some quarters believed their interview might have found a way for softening the Sudeten Germans' insistent demands.

Be Given Preferment

Seven postmasterships in larger communities — including Bodenback, Asch and Rumburg — are to be given the Sudeten Germans.

From their ranks, it was said also would be selected the chief of overseers — who directs public works — at Bruenn; district governors at Asch, Trautenau and possibly other communities, and more employes of the railroad administration.

The premier said the ministry of justice was giving favorable consideration, too, to appointment of a Sudeten German as president of the regional court at Eger.

A member of the British mission said these were concessions of a "positive, specific nature which form a substantial basis for negotiations with the Sudeten German opposition."

Lord Runciman told Hodza he "welcomed the action taken by the government in this respect."

Most of their interview, it was acknowledged, concerned Lord Runciman's talk with Henlein.

INCORPORATION IN ELECTRIC PROJECT

Pettis and Saline countians, living in the rural districts, are enthused over the proposed rural electrification project, and applications already received will make possible a one hundred mile line. These applications are almost entirely those that were taken at the called meetings, with scarcely any house to house canvass.

Leaders of the project are asking those interested to make their applications in the near future either with the leaders in their communities, or at the office of the county agents. Work of plotting out the areas will soon begin and will be confined to those districts from which the applications come.

After the approval of Henry C. Salveter, project attorney, a meeting of the sixteen incorporators, was called for Thursday afternoon in the assembly room of the court house. The incorporators are:

Pettis, Thomas J. Raines, George R. Wilkerson, J. A. DeJarnette, W. T. Harper, W. W. Howe, John Harris, Jr., Mrs Edward Heffernan, Mrs J. C. Longan. Saline, Otto H. Pinkepank, F. G. Young, Edgar Marsh, L. T. Stauffer, George P. Baker, Mrs. Reba Williams Mrs. J. S. Utz, Mrs. Otto Blosser.

Articles of incorporation were drawn up and signed, and a board of directors, elected. They are:

Chairman, T. J. Raines.

Vice-chairman, L. T. Stouffer.

Secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Edwin Heffernan.

Other members, W. T. Harper, J. A. DeJarnett, W. W. Howe, Mrs. Reba Williams, Otto H. Pinkepank, Edgar B. Marsh.

The Capital Engineering Company, of Jefferson City, was selected and approved for the engineering work.

TESTIFIES POLICY BANKERS HAD TO TURN OVER CASH

Joseph Ison Declares J. J. Hines Received Some of Funds

"CONTRIBUTIONS TO JIMMY HINES" CLUB

Negro Witness Is Given Blistering Examination on Denials

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—Joseph "Big Joe" Ison, 47, a West Indian Negro and one-time Harlem policy game operator, testified in supreme court today at the conspiracy trial of James J. Hines, Tammany district leader, that money he and others bankers had to turn over to the Dutch Schultz mob was going to "Jimmy Hines' Club."

Ison said Hines got $125 a week from the multi-million dollar policy racket for political "protection."

The witness said arrests for policy violations dropped 50 per cent late in 1932 and early in 1933—the period shortly after Hines, according to District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey's accusations, entered into a conspiracy with Dutch Schultz to "put the fix" on the racket.

"Big Joe" said the money was recorded on the policy slip books as "fees" for lawyers and bondsmen.

"I was puzzled at first what the figures meant," he said.

He said he talked it over with George Weinberg and J. Richard (Dixie) Davis, and that one of them told him:

"The money is going to Jimmy Hines' Club."

States Profits Taken Over

Ison later said his bank alone, among many other Harlem policy banks, was forced to contribute $125 weekly to the Hines club.

He said in the spring of 1933 his bank cleared $75,000 but all the profits were taken over by "Big Harry" Schoenhaus.

Earlier, with one of Dewey's aides accused of brow-beating and "coercing" a witness, the district attorney called Edward Grant, grand jury stenographer, to testify.

Grant was called to swear to the accuracy of grand jury minutes which the witness had challanged.

The stenographer identified the minutes and defense attorney Lloyd Paul Strayker conseded their accuracy.

Apparently still incensed at the recantation of the witness, however, Dewey insisted on reading the minutes to the Hines jury.

The prosecutor emphasized a quotation by the witness, Julius (Red) Williams, 46, a South Carolina-born Negro and an election captain in Hines' West Harlem ward, that Hines specifically sent him to the policy racket headquarters of the Dutch Schultz mob to get a job.

Recommitted To Prison

Williams was recommitted to Tombs prison last night as a material witness when Justice Ferdinand Pecora raised his bail, at Dewey's request, from $500 to $10,000.

The Negro accused Assistant District Attorney Saul Gelb of putting words in his mouth and threatening to send him to jail unless he signed a statement, which he protested he was unable to read. linking Hines with the notorious gang overlord, Dutch Schultz.

Reading the jury minutes, Dewey quoted the Negro as having testified that he went to see George Weinberg ,a Schultz mobster, and saying: "I told him Mr. Hines told me to come up and see him."

The power of Hines' name in the Schultz racket headquarters, the witness testified, led to his getting a $30-a-week job "doing very little."

Williams denied every significant admission attributed to him in the signed statement Gelb held.

He denied Hines in 1932 sent him to Harlem policy headquarters "to see George"—George Weinberg, Schultz henchman who has pleaded guilty to the same indictment naming Hines.

He denied Weinberg gave him $30 or that he worked for the policy racketeer. Reiterating "I met him in 1935," he denied even knowing Hines in 1932.

The witness added he did not know what the statement contained because, he said, he could not read but was ashamed to admit his illiteracy to Gelb.

On re-direct examination, Dewey produced a transcript of testimony which he said Williams gave to the special grand jury and which contained substantially the same admissions as the statement.

O'CONNOR ASKS FOR SHOWDOWN WITH PRESIDENT

Urges Nation To Back Him In His Fight Administration

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—(AP)—Representative John J. O'Connor (D.-N.Y.), asserting "The President's attack on me and other members of congress is an escalator to a dictatorship," asked the nation to back him last night in his fight on the Roosevelt administration.

"Let's have it out," he said in an address prepared for delivery over a radio network (CBS).

"If the people of the United States desire to extend an invitation to dictatorship, we should know about it just as speedily as possible.

"If the 'purge' is going to work in America, the sooner we know it, the better. I, for one, have no hesitancy in snatching up the gage which the President has thrown down."

O'Connor, placed by the president on the administration's "purge" list, said the issue was 'which shall it be—Democracy or monocracy?"

He said the President had read at his press conference in New York newspaper editorial containing "a brief, but viciously untrue reference to me," and had added, "You can interpret that as coming from me."

"Nearly every man in public life x x x has been insulted by that newspaper But it is quite different," said O'Connor, " to be insulted by the President of the United States. One naturally feels it very keenly and naturally is at a disadvantage to reply in kind. x x x

Sees His Duty

"I would be derelict, however, in my duty as a representative elected by the people and as an American citizen, if I did not express myself as to what I believe to be the issue now definitely raised in this country.

"Will the "purge" work in America?"

O'Connor said "If we are to revert to a one-man government, the people should be made conscious of the issue at once. x x x if they submit to the change, they should do it with their eyes open."

On Purge List

The veteran representative of Manhattan's 16th congressional district said his opposition to the President's reorganization bill was "the one unabsolvable 'sin' which has placed me high on the 'purge list.' "

"Other names are inscribed on that roll of ex-communicants," he added, "because they honestly feared there was a desire on the part of the executive to control the court branch of our government.

'Some of us, still unchastened, still maintaining the same views, feel that the indictment may yet constitute an 'honor roll.'

"The independence of thought and action by our representatives has never heretofore been challenged," O'Connor continued. x x x

REDUCE VALUATION ON BUILDING HERE

The State Board of Equalization and the State Tax Commission have reduced the assessed valuation of the building on the southwest corner of Third street and Ohio avenue to $33,500, according to word received in Sedalia.

The building is owned by Ira H. Lohman and Mrs. Lohman of Jefferson City. It was originally assessed at $45,000, and was reduced to $40,000 by the Pettis County Board of Equalization. Mr. Lohman and wife made an appeal for further reduction, and three members of the state commission came to Sedalia recently for a hearing in the matter. It was taken under advisement and a decision given Thursday.

Lamm and Barnett represented Mr. and Mrs. Lohman and F. F. Wesner and L. J. Harned the Pettis County Board of Equalization.

INSURGENTS IN A HEAVY AIR RAID ON BARCELONA

Score Dead and 100 Injured—Franco Prepares General Offensive

By The Associated Press.

HENDAYE, France, (At the Spanish Frontier) Aug. 19—(AP)—Spanish insurgents closed the French frontier and loosed a heavy air raid on Barcelona today in preparation for a general offensive.

Insurgent military leaders confirmed Generalissimo Francisco Franco himself would lead a new drive. Franco named General Juan Vigon, former chief of staff of the northern insurgent army, chief of his personal staff.

Insurgent sources said they expected the offensive would be directed against Catalonia, possibly coupled with a simultaneous drive against besieged Madrid.

The goal of the campaign apparently was to end the civil war before it reaches the third winter.

The insurgent air raiders struck Barcelona its heaviest aerial blow in months.

Dispatches reaching the border tentatively set the casualties at 20 dead and 100 injured.

They said the bombardment rained on Barcelona by three waves of insurgent planes between dawn and noon.

Most side streets in the old quarter, near the waterfront, were roped off while rescue and demolition squads attempted to remove the wounded from the buildings and cart away the wreckage.

Commission In Inquiry

The raiders struck less than 24 hours after the arrival of a British commission to investigate aerial bombardments of unfortified towns behind the war lines.

After the raid on the flower market, its elderly women flower sellers stoically set up their booths half a block from the wrecked street.

Bombing of Barcelona and reports that the insurgents were preparing a heavy new offensive followed charges large numbers of Italian troops and quantities of war material recently have been sent to Franco.

The British embassy in Rome has drawn "attention" of the Fascist government to these charges.

Government dispatches said an insurgent thrust against Almaden, key to the productive mercury mining region in southwestern Spain, has been smashed.

A brisk counter offensive was said to have rolled Insurgent General Gonzalo Queipo de Llano's lines back 2 miles into the outskirts of Zarzacapilla, the center of a network of roads through the sun-blistered "Hills of the Goat."

Franco's front lines in southwestern Spain roughly resembled a drawn bow with an arrow projecting beyond, aimed at the heart of the mining area where insurgents started their offensive Aug. 11.

SAY COMMUNIST SALUTE GIVEN BY U.S. CONGRESSMEN

Witness on Un-American Activities Names O'Connell and Bernard

YOUTHS TELL OF AFFAIRS IN SPAIN

Allege Communist Propaganda In WPA Theater Project

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18— A witness told a house committee today that Representative O'Connell (D-Mont) and Bernard (FL-Minn) gave the "regular Communistic salute" after addressing several hundred American youths fighting in Spain.

Alvin I. Halpern, who told the committee investigating unAmerican activities yesterday about his experiences in the Spanish Loyalist army, said the house members spoke at a dedication of pillars at a hospital at Benicasim, Spain.

"They told us we were fighting for a great cause—Democracy—to wipe out Fascism," Halpern said. "They gave the regular Soviet salute—a clenched fist in an upright position."

"They told us if we wanted anything after we returned to this country to let them know."

Abraham Sobel, another youth, who related his experiences in Spain yesterday, told the committee under questioning by Representative Starnes (D-Ala) that speakers for the Roxbury Workers' club and the American league against war and Fascism, of which he was a member, solicited his enlistment in the Spanish fighting forces.

The committee later unanimously ordered transmission to the justice department of the testimony of the two young American deserters from the Spanish government army for determination of whether federal law was being violated by Communist agents recruiting volunteers here for the Spanish conflict.

"Asked For 5,000 Marines"

Mosier asked the witnesses whether they took up O'Connell and Bernard on their offer of assistance.

"Oh! Yes," replied Halpern, with a laugh, "we asked for about 5,000 marines for over there."

"Is it a fact that members of the Communist party are contributing factors in the American League for Peace and Democracy and It's Predecessor, the American League Against War and Fascism?" Starnes asked.

"Yes sir," Halpern answered.

Miss Margaret Kerr, official of the Better America Federation of California, returning to the witness stand, said that in Los Angeles she had seen the same persons at meetings of the American League for Peace and Democracy and the Communist party.

Representative Mason (R-Ill) who has been attempting to link the league with Communism, said: "Evidence on file with this committee contains proof — acceptable in any court—that the league was organized by leading Communists in the first place, is controlled by known leading Communists today. . . . Denials that it's a front for the Communist party can't do away with the testimony that's been presented here."

Mason on Wednesday named eight government officials here who, he said, were league members.

Miss Kerr told of attending Communist meetings in Los Angeles and asserted Clarence Hathaway, editor of the Daily Worker, at one meeting "stressed the comparison" of the Soviet and United States constitutions, "to the disadvantage of the constitution of the United States."

Brings In Theatre Project

Mrs. Hazel Huffman, speaking for a committee of theatrical workers on relief, told the committee WPA's federal theater project was being used to spread Communist propaganda in New York.

She said the Workers' Alliance, which she described as closely allied with the Communist party, "now dominates" the theater project.

Thomas told newsmen, the committee, which is investigating un-American activities, has "as complete a case as there is" to show Communism pervaded the project.

"I have been told," he said, "that it is impossible to get a job in the federal theater project unless you are a member of the Worker's Alliance."

(Some witnesses testified the Alliance was dominated by Communists.)

DR. LA MANCE SAYS HE IS INNOCENT IN WIFE'S DEATH

Mother Visits Accused Son In Jail at Linneus Thursday Night

LACLEDE, Mo., Aug. 19.—(AP)—Mrs. Lora LaMance, mother of Dr. William F. LaMance, said today her son told her he was innocent of slaying his pretty 29-year-old wife, whose body was found Monday night in a backyard cellar after she had been missing a week.

"Mother, I fear nothing. It seems this had to come, but I am innocent and have spoken the truth," Mrs. LaMance quoted the osteopath as telling her last night in the Linneus, Mo., jail, where he is held on a first degree murder charge.

It was the doctor's first statement concerning his arrest.

Declaring he had "bared his soul" to her during a two-hour visit, the Manitou Springs, Colo., evangelist said she was positive her son was innocent.

Accused More At Ease

"I have absolute faith in God," she said, "and believe things like this come to us in life to try our faith and will come out for the best."

After the long talk with his mother, Dr. LaMance seemed at ease once more and puffed leisurely on a cigarette.

At Ottawa, Kas., Mrs. R. P. O'Mara, sister of the dead woman, said Mrs. La Mance attempted to commit suicide in 1930 by taking an overdose of a narcotic.

Mrs. Lora LaMance, who has conducted evangelistic services with her husband for 33 years, been in every state and claims to be the second woman in the United States licensed to the Methodist ministry, said relatives of the dead woman had assured "we're for Bill."

After funeral services in Williamsburg, Kas., the evangelist said Mrs. Roy Clark, sister of the victim, "put her arms around me and said 'Mother LaMance do you need me? I'll come down to Laclede if you do' and she is coming. She said to William and me that day 'we want you to understand this, we're for Bill. We'll do anything in the world for him.' and I asked, 'and you Mother Duvall (mother of the victim)? She came over and said to Bill 'my son, of course, I would,' and put her arms around him."

Further legal steps in the case awaited completion, probably Saturday, of viscera tests by Kansas City and Jefferson City laboratories.

The tests were ordered in an effort to determine whether the wife of Laclede's only doctor might have died of poison. Sheriff Brown, who discovered the body, expressed belief she was beaten to death, but Lon R. Owen, LaMance's attorney, said he was confident the tests would "show poison which will be convincing proof of suicide."

Owen said the preliminary hearing for LaMance would be held Monday.

SERIOUS VIEW ON THE ARREST OF A BRITISH ENVOY

Full Report Is Called For on Detention of Capt. Kendrick

BORDER ACTION IS STILL UNEXPLAINED

Reported Passport Officer Taken In Custody By German Police

LONDON, Aug. 19—(AP)—The British government today informed Germany it "takes a serious view" of the unexplained arrest of Captain Thomas Kendrick, a British passport officer in Vienna, by German secret police at the German-Swiss border.

On instructions from the London foreign office, Sir Neville Henderson, ambassador to Germany, asked the German government for 'a full and speedy examination."

The British official was taken by the Gestapo Wednesday as he and his wife were about to leave Germany on vacation. She was permitted to return to her home in Vienna.

The German foreign office promised a full inquiry would be made.

The ambassador's earlier report of the arrest was rushed to Viscount Halifax, foreign secretary, at his Yorkshire home, by special messenger.

British officials said they hoped Ambassador Henderson's representations, which included the statement of London's "serious view," would lead to Kendrick's early release.

Kendrick, who has been passport control officer in Vienna for thirteen years, was believed still held in the Hotel Metropole, secret police headquarters, in that city.

Speculation On Detention

In foreign office circles here there was some speculation as to whether Kendrick might have been arrested because he granted more British visas to Austrian Jews than the German government considered discreet.

Another suggestion was he might have been held because his passport gave him his wartime rank of captain and he had failed to convince the German police he was not on military service.

The British government also pressed Italy for information on allegations made in the London press and in the house of commons to the effect Premier Mussolini was sending new reinforcements and war material to the Spanish insurgents.

This represented an about-face by Britain. Eleven days ago the British charge d'affaires in Rome, Sir Noel Charles, drew attention to these allegations in a call on foreign minister Count Galeazzo Ciano. Subsequently, however, London spokesmen said Britain did not necessarily expect to get a reply from Ciano.

Prime Minister Chamberlain left London for a week end at Chequers, his official country house, after seeing a brief summary of Insurgent Generalissimo Francisco Franco's reply to the British plan for getting foreign soldiers out of the Spanish war.

However, it was said the summary was not "sufficiently comprehensive" to permit its publication.

Unable To Explain

BERLIN, Aug. 19—(AP)—An informed source disclosed today the Gestapo (secret police) tried to arrest Captain Thomas Kendrick, British passport officer at Vienna, at his home in that city Tuesday but he had already left by automobile.

Kendrick was arrested Wednesday at the German-Swiss border.

German authorities continued their refusal to divulge the nature of the charges against the British official, but they rejected the suggestion he might have been arrested for violation of Germany's restrictions on foreign exchange dealings.

Foreign officials, however, were unable to explain his detention.

THE LOSER IN THE EAST WILL BE THE WEST

There is something a little unreal about the casual, interested-spectator role the western world is playing in regard to the war in China.

Aside from the few busy diplomats who keep looking for a chance to get a little ax grinding done, most of Europe and America seems to look on the war as a vast drama which is fascinating, interesting, tragic—but which can have no very direct effect on occidental life.

Yet a very little thought ought to convince anyone that what is going on in the Orient today is a revolution as profound and far-reaching as any in human history. No matter who wins, the old order is ended.

* * *

Ever since the European world geared itself to an expanding economy, seeking new markets and raw material sources overseas, the far shore of the Pacific has been one of its chosen preserves. For more than a century the exploitation of China — peaceful and otherwise — has been an important element in the Occident's political and commercial set-up.

Now that exploitation is being ended. The frightful battles along the Yangtze are destroying the whole intricate network by which the western world made use of the east. The "white man's burden" is being taken off of the white man's back, and it is extremely doubtful that he will ever regain very much of it.

* * *

Consider what will happen if Japan finally wins this war.

Beyond the shadow of a doubt, China will become a closed field. Japan is making tremendous sacrifices in this war; if victorious, she will naturally expect proportionate rewards. The rich Chinese trade will be under her thumb, and it is unthinkable that she would consent to share it with anyone.

But the cause will be no better if China wins. For the China that would then confront the white nations would be a China conscious of her strength; a China that had learned how to fight in the western way, and that no longer had to submit meekly to anything which superior force might choose to inflict. China today fights for her independence in every sense of the word; if she wins, it will not be a qualified independence that she enjoys, but an absolute one.

The east is throwing off the white man's dominance. Like it or not, the western world must adjust itself to that fact.

• SO THEY SAY

SHORT TALKS ON ADVERTISING

ORANGES WITHOUT CHRISTMAS

Number 11

Do you remember when oranges were scarcely ever seen except in Christmas stockings? They were expensive too. It was a great thing for us when the orange was promoted to a regular place on our year-round breakfast table. Now the drinking of delicious, healthful orange juice is a universal custom.

What brought about this change? It was accomplished entirely by advertising. Farmers who raised oranges wanted to sell more of them and they advertised the benefits of drinking orange juice. Many of us tried it and liked it, and we bought more oranges. Production of oranges went up and prices came down. Annual consumption of oranges increased from 7 per capita to 58, and everybody is happier for it, consumers, farmers, railroads, and grocers.

A distinguished physician recently described how he and other nutrition experts had tried for years to educate the public to drink tomato juice. But they didn't get anywhere. Then certain food companies started canning tomato juice. They advertised its pleasing taste and health-giving properties. As a direct result, nearly everybody drinks tomato juice now, and in 1937 the public bought 5,750,000 cases of it.

Spinach long known as a valuable food, has been the bane of many a youngster's existence. To make children eat it was like pulling teeth. Then, along came Popeye the Sailor. Backed by an advertising appropriation, he actually converted children into enthusiastic spinach-eaters. Popeye's thousands of fans want to be strong, and they thoroughly enjoy their spinach.

Once upon a time, the Roman Emperor Augustus was in a bad way, suffering from some sort of diet ailment. A traveling doctor fed the Emperor on lettuce leaves and he got well. Even that long ago, it seems that somebody knew about the value of green leaves in the human diet. Members of his court imitated the Emperor's eating habits and all began eating salads made of lettuce leaves.

But there was no advertising in those days, and salad eating did not become a general custom. Centuries later, Napoleon knew about the value of this kind of food, for he ate it daily. When in the field, his chef prepared salads of green leaves from a nearby tree, if lettuce was not available. But the general public was not greatly influenced by Napoleon's eccentric eating habits.

In this country, less than a generation ago, green salads were almost unknown in the average home. Today we are a nation of salad-eaters. What caused this remarkable change? Advertising, and almost nothing else. Companies that sell dressing and other salad ingredients have educated the public to the health value of fresh green leaves and have taught people how to prepare salads. As a consequence, the average person's diet has become lighter and decidedly more healthful.

Oranges, tomato juice, spinach, and salads. These are only a few of the better foods popularized by advertising. There are many more and the American table is now the best in the world. The good work continues. Advertising puts more health in our food and more zest in our meals.

DIAGNOSIS BY MODELS

Two interesting news stories have come to hand.

The first tells about the work being done at a novel Children's Center that opened recently in London. Probably the most interesting feature of the place, where psychological difficulties are straightened out, is a large room cluttered with toys and building materials. Here the children are encouraged to construct "model worlds" according to their own ideas.

It seems that psychoanalysts have found that by analyzing these models they can easily "dig down," according to the news story, "into the troubles which lie at the root of the child's difficulty."

The second interesting news story which has come to hand describes an elaborate exhibit being planned for New York's World Fair. It's a kind of American dream of the future— a model of a system of coast-to-coast highways that may some day be a reality.

Each highway is made up of three separated lanes, in which the motorist would be required to travel at the speeds set for those lanes. In the fast lane the motorist would travel at 100 miles an hour; in the middle-speed lane, at 70 miles an hour; in the slow-pokes' lane, at 50 miles an hour. There are no other lanes.

Hmmm.

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY GO ROUND

TRADE MARK REGISTERED

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON — There is an interesting story behind the fact that the President's Social Security radio speech carried an extra line not given in the advance press release. The story involves the vanity of a lady; to wit, Madame Secretary Perkins, who seldom misses a bet to promote publicity for herself.

Just before the President delivered his radio address commemorating the third anniversary of the Social Security Act, Madame Perkins made it a point to go over to the White House and read the President's speech.

She found in the speech a boost for Senator Wagner of New York and for Representative Davey Lewis of Maryland, the two authors of the bill. Both are campaigning this fall, Wagner for reelection and Lewis for the Senate against Old Deal Senator Tydings. So the President planned to give Lewis, in particular, a big hand.

But this did not meet the approval of Miss Perkins. She promptly blue-penciled the chief reference to Lewis and Wagner, merely leaving their names in the speech, then sat down and wrote a nice long tribute to herself.

White House Secretary Steve Early, being in awe of the lady, accepted the corrections, and the President, being in a hurry, accepted the speech. Later when he discovered that the Lewis tribute had been left out, he inserted an extra line for Lewis, impromptu, over the radio.

"Monkey Trial" Prosecutor

Few people outside of Tennessee remember that Tom Stewart, who replaces George ("Marble") Berry in the Senate next year, was chief prosecutor in the famous Scopes "monkey trial" thirteen years ago.

With the late William Jennings Bryan helping him, Stewart convicted the young Dayton, Tenn., school teacher for defying the state law and teaching evolution. The late Clarence Darrow was defense attorney.

Forty-five years old, Steward has long been active in state politics. He was put into the senatorial race by Senator Kenneth McKellar, with whom Stewart has been closely affiliated politically for many years. Stewart is married and has five children. In his youth he was a crack baseball pitcher and is still an ardent devotee of the game.

Hull vs. Mexico

The diplomatic exchanges between Mexico and the State Department have been the cause of considerable apprehension among Cabinet members, other than Cordell Hull.

They fear that the President's Good Neighbor Policy so carefully nurtured for five years, may collapse.

Inside fact is that some difference of opinion exists regarding the Mexican situation even within the State Department. Secretary Hull has been wanting to engage in a vigorous note-writing campaign against Mexico, which some of his advisers have opposed.

The note to Mexico limiting the protest to seizure of American agricultural lands was a compromise between the two groups.

Secretary Hull has become so irked at Mexico that it has become almost a personal vendetta. The question has been discussed among other White House advisers and with the President, but the only opinion they have reached is that Secretary Hull has made the issue a personal one and nothing can budge him.

Consumers' Incomes

Some startling findings are contained in the study of consumers' incomes made by Miss Hildegard Kneeland, ace economist of the National Resources Committee. The survey is the most comprehensive of its kind ever made in the U. S. A.

According to Miss Kneeland there are five general income categories in the country, as follows:

At the bottom—a group of 8,000,000 families "continually facing starvation."

Next—11,000,000 families who are "fighting poverty."

Above them—the "comfortable middle class" numbering 8,000,000 families.

Fourth—1,585,000 families who are "habitually able to afford luxuries."

On top of the heap—a small class of 800,000 families who are "not only living luxuriously but piling up fortunes."

Other significant figures compiled by Miss Kneeland are:

That only one out of 60 families in the U. S., or a total of 800,000 families, have incomes of more than $5,000; that 283,000 families (1 per cent of the population) have a gross income equal to the total annual earnings of the poorest 11,000,000 families (40 per cent of the population), and that 75 families at the top get more money than 1,200,000 families at the bottom.

Merry-Go-Round

Republican insiders boast that they cast 20,000 votes in the Idaho Democratic primary for Representative D. Worth Clark and against New Deal Senator James Pope. Pope lost by only 4,000. An ironic feature of his defeat was that his friends enacted the new election law permitting Republicans to vote for Democratic primary candidates and vice versa.

HAYWIRE HOUSE

BY EDWIN RUTT

COPYRIGHT, 1938, NEA SERVICE, INC.

Yesterday: Shooting their way into the Restetorium, Bull Griffin and Tony Spaldini announce they are going to stay for the night.

CHAPTER IX

A COMPLETE silence greeted Mr. Griffin's announcement. Kinks finally broke it.

"Well, gee," he began, "I don't know whether . . ."

Sally stopped him. Sally was a girl who missed none of the tricks. And since she'd been chivied into the hotel business, she was going to be in it. And how. She glanced upward toward the Harknesses. The Harknesses were retreating. Evidently Mrs. Harkness, somewhat stunned, had decided to obey Mr. Griffin's peremptory order to "beat it."

"Very well," Sally said, in a business-like voice. "You can stay here. Our rates are $6 a day per person."

"Six . . . huh?"

Sally saw that an explanation was in order.

"This," said Sally, "is the Pennington-Parker Restatorium. A place"—she threw Kinks a severe glance—"for rest and relaxation."

"Well," Mr. Griffin decided, "it's oke wit' me. I could go fer some rest. In a big way."

"Our rates," said Sally, who hadn't taken her eye off the ball, "are $6 a day per person."

But if she thought that this was going to throw Bull Griffin for a loss, she had mistaken her man. Mr. Griffin expertly shifted his gun from his right hand to his left, dug into his pocket and produced a roll of money that would have choked a hippopotamus. He peeled off a $100 bill.

"Dere you are," he said. "Dat's fer da two of us fer a week. Keep da change an' buy yourself a aeroplane."

Sally took the money dazedly.

"You—you mean you're actually going to pay us?" she gasped. "Without a—a fuss?"

* * *

MR. GRIFFIN was insulted.

"Sure," he said. "Wotcha t'ink I am, a deadbeat?"

"But you've got guns and . . ."

"Aw, we ain't tough, lady," interrupted Mr. Griffin affably. "Only wit' mugs like da Little Cheese."

"But I don't see why you should want to stay in a place like this."

"Well now look, lady," said Bull, in the voice of one who addresses the primary grades. "It's like dis: Me an' da Little Cheese usta be pals. Dat wuz before I'm wised up to wot a dirty, lyin', doublecrossin', little weasel he is. But two weeks ago I'm wised."

"What wised you?" said Sally, who was beginning to learn the patter.

Tony Spaldini

"Aw," said Bull, "me an' da Little Cheese is in da same rack—er—line of business. Poultry. You know, chickens an' eggs. Only his territory's Queens an' I got da Bronx. An' everyt'ing was okiedoke till two weeks ago he comes up to da Bronx an' tries to cut in on me. Well, dat makes me boin. T'ings like dat don't go wid me." His face darkened and he trotted out a gem gleaned from his vicarious reading. "I don't brook no interference."

"I get it," said Kinks. "You and the Little Cheese are having a war."

"Dat's right," said Bull. "I'm gittin' him an' he's gittin' me. Only he ain't, see? But tonight me an' Tony has business in Noo Haven. Well, a couple of da Cheese's boys is hangin' around da Bronx an' dey sees us go. So dey follies us. Dere's a little shootin' off an' on an' we slides off da main road toward dis place to give 'em da slip. But we ain't quick enough. Dere right on our tail an' comin' down dis road dey plugs our back tire. So we pull in here. An da only reason dey ain't still shootin' at dis house is we hit one of 'em t'rough da winder. Dat leaves two against one so dey takes it on da lam. Get it, lady?"

"Yes," said Sally. "But if they've gone why do you want to stay? And why did you say at first that it was to be for just overnight and then pay us for a week?"

* * *

A CRAFTY expression appeared upon Bull's rugged face.

"Well," he said, "I got to t'inkin'. Dem guys is gonna beat it back to da Cheese an' spill wot's happened. Da Cheese is never gonna figger us to stay here. So wot do we do? We lays low here an' da Cheese don't know where we are. Den, after a little, Tony an' me takes a trip to Queens. Da Cheese ain't suspectin' nuttin' an' dey ain't nuttin' to it. We pulls our rods an'—bam! Da Little Cheese goes fer a ride all smothered in chrysanthemums." Mr. Griffin leered in gloating anticipation. "I'll send 'em to him meself, damn if I won't."

Sally nodded. "I think that's a very brilliant plan, Mr. Griffin. Stay here just as long as you want. Come along now, I'll show you your room."

On the following afternoon there was a little trouble with Mrs. Harkness. Mrs. Harkness was not partial to Mr. Griffin and Mr. Spaldini.

"We're leaving tonight," she told Sally. "I don't know what kind of a place this is. Those men are rough, loud and coarse."

* * *

SHE had elected to deliver this edict in the living room where Mr. Harkness was tampering contentedly with a light wire. And before Sally could reply Mr. Harkness spoke, most unexpectedly.

"I refuse to leave this house," he said.

Mrs. Harkness whirled on him. Were her ears betraying her? "Alvin Harkness, what do you mean?"

"Just," said Mr. Harkness, splicing wire expertly, "that I'm not going anywhere else. I like Mr. Griffin. He's interested in my idea for a revolver that shoots by electricity. My mind is made up, Elfleeta. We stay. That is final."

And the worm, having turned, prevailed for perhaps the first time in his life.

Two quiet days followed. Mr. Griffin's car had been incarcerated in the barn. Messrs. Griffin and Spaldini were spending the time at pinochle. Mr. Harkness, drunk with victory, was electrifying the mounted animal heads with a kind of reckless abandon. The Lord was in his Heaven and all was oke in the world.

On the afternoon of the third day Kinks sat in the kitchen watching Sally make biscuits.

"All is well on the Rappahannock," he said. "Peace and serenity walk the land. Which seems a propitious moment, Miss Pennington, to ask you when you intend to marry me?"

Before Sally could frame a scathing reply Mrs. Clipstack clattered into the kitchen.

"See here," panted Mrs. Clipstack. "I don't know what things are a-comin' to. There's a lunatic in the front yard takin' rabbits out of a hat."

PASTOR POISONS A MAID AND SETS DWELLING AFIRE

Admits Charges at Mandan, N. D., and Is Given Life Sentence

MANDAN, N. D., Aug 19—(AP)—Rev. Heio Janssen, Evangelical Lutheran pastor at Krem, began a life prison sentence today a few hours after pleading guilty to poisoning his 16-year-old housemaid and firing the parsonage containing her body.

The minster, 51, admitted he killed Alma Kruckenberg because she was pregnant. District Judge H. L. Berry sentenced Janssen at a special court session shortly after midnight. He was taken immediately to the state penitentiary.

The arraignment followed swiftly after Janssen signed a confession before State's Attorney Floyd Sperry of Mercer county admitting he perpetrated the crime Monday and burned his ten room house that night.

"The devil overcame me," the pastor said impassively. "I did wrong. I have a very good christan wife and two boys any father would be proud of and I feel only too sorry that I bring such grief to them."

Miss Kruckenberg was one of ten children in the family of Mr. and Mrs. John Kruckenberg, farmers near Krem which is located 60 miles north of Mandan.

She had been employed at the parsonage since last January.

First Denied Crime

During two days of incessant interrogation, Sperry said the minister denied any connection with the fire and burned body found in the ruins.

Thursday evening the parents of the murdered girl confronted Rev. Janssen and pleaded that he "tell the truth." The confession followed. Feeling ran so high in the community that trial was ordered immediately.

The parsonage burned shortly after Mrs. Janssen had gone to Bismarck for medical treatment. The minister told authorities the house was ignited by chimney sparks. Investigation located the charred body of the girl in the basement and revealed she was pregnant.

"Threats by the girl to tell Mrs. Janssen about her condition were said by the reverend to have brought him finally to put some poison crystals in a glass of wine given the girl," Sperry stated.

Sperry said the minister had committeed a statutory offense against the girl three months before.

Was Bedfast When She Began KruGon; Regulated At Once

Entire System Had Been Clogged With Poisonous Impurities; KruGon's Action Remarkable; Now Up And Around For The First In Quite A Long Time

RESULTS.....not exaggerated claims and promises...are what count and that is why KruGon, the famous new laxative-tonic formula, is meeting with such tremendous approval wherever it is introduced.

MRS. FRANK B. ANDREWS,

People right here in Sedalia by the hundreds now know the surprising and gratifying effect men and women are deriving from the use of this new remedy....even in long standing cases of rheumatism, neuritis, stomach, kidney, bowel and blood troubles.

For example, read what Mrs. Frank B. Andrews, 421 Jackson St., Jefferson City, Missouri, said recently in talking with the KruGon Man who is at the McFarland & Robinson Drug Co., 104 W. Main St., Sedalia;

"Only those who have given KruGon a trial themselves can appreciate just how remarkable it really is," said Mrs. Frank B. Andrews. "I had always been bothered with a stubborn case of constipation and about a year ago I experienced a breaking-out over my body. It was not a rash nor pimples but actually BOILS. I tried everything seemingly and finally I was able to subdue these erruptions .. but only to reappear with unabated force at a later date. I was compelled to take to my bed, for seven days I was bedfast when I began taking KruGon. This new remedy proved to be the ONLY MEDICINE in twenty years that was able to REGULATE ME AT ONCE. Within a few days I was able to sit up a short time, in ten days I was able to dress and go about the house and two weeks later I went outside for the first time in weeks. I know my system was clogged with poisonous impurities causing these boils and I also realize that this new laxative-tonic formula eliminated this dreadful poison in no uncertain manner. The swelling has left my limbs, no boils are to be found on my body and my strength and energy is rapidly returning."

"If I had not known of this wonderful KruGon I would still be suffering," continued Mrs. Frank B. Andrews. "The agony was awful but KruGon did not waste any time in getting to the source of my health troubles. The small cost of KruGon is forgotten when we recall the thousands of dollars we have spent without relief. I will always have KruGon on hand as it has certainly worked wonders in my case."

The KruGon Man is daily meeting the local public at the McFarland & Robinson Drug Co., 104 West Main Street, Sedalia where he is introducing and explaining the action of this new medical discovery.

VISIONS CHANCE TO CUT EXPENDITURES

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19—(AP)—Chairman Doughton (D-NC) of the house ways and means committee said today improving business conditions indicate congress can reduce government expenditures next year and still meet relief demands.

The veteran legislator, whose committee drafts all the tax bills, predicted there would be no need to enact new taxes unless the upward trend of industry is reversed.

He agreed, however, with Chairman Harrison of the senate finance committee that existing "nuisance" taxes, which bring in about $500,000,000 a year, must be continued.

Doughton said "everybody knows that these large expenditures and the resulting deficit in revenue cannot continue forever. Either expenditures must be reduced or taxes eventually must be raised."

Doughton said he was not prepared to commit himself on a proposal to broaden the income tax base by lowering exemptions and to increase the levies on incomes in the middle brackets. Harrison had said these changes might be considered by congress if business failed to show gains.

SPECULATION ON SECRET AUTO TRIP

By The Associated Press.

ZURICH, Switzerland, Aug. 19—A secret night automobile trip by Premier Juan Negrin of the Spanish government led to speculation today whether he had come to Switzerland for conferences with representatives of the Spanish insurgent leader, Generalissimo Francisco Franco.

There was no trace in Zurich this morning of the Duke of Alba, insurgent representative in London, whose presence was reported here yesterday.

The Duke of Alba was reported to have established headquarters at St. Moritz, 90 miles from Zurich and within easy reach of the Spanish premier, who had a special airplane sent from Barcelona.

However, Dr. Negrin left Zurich this afternoon to return to Barcelona, insisting he had come here as Spanish delegate to the International Congress of Physiologists, in whose proceedings he took part this morning.

"I was particularly anxious not to miss this congress," the Premier declared, recalling he had attended several previous meetings of the organization. "I wanted to show that outside of all considerations of time, place and fact science maintains its rights and does not cease to impose its duties."

But last night Dr. Negrin left his hotel for an undisclosed destination.

Observers were skeptical Dr. Negrin would have come to Zurich only for the convention sessions, which close today, so soon after the government had been through a cabinet crisis and while government armies were engaged in a general offensive.

PLANE-HOUSE CRASH TO BE GIVEN BY RADIO

This evening Capt. F. F. Frakes, who crashes into a house in the thrill day program at the fair Saturday afternoon, with Marvin Northrop, a pilot with him, will motor to Columbia. There they will present over the radio through station KFRU between 6:30 and 7 p. m., an invisible presentation of the thrilling stunt.

REPORT THAT BRITISH SHIP SUNK BY BOMBS

LONDON, Aug. 19—(AP)—The Spanish (government) press agency today reported Spanish insurgent warplanes bombed and sank the 1,363-ton British freighter, Stanbrook, the second ship owned by the same company attacked today by insurgent raiders.

Sally Clark Dances to Happiness

An exceedingly happy young lady is Sally Clark, younger sister of Mrs. John Roosevelt, who is shown above as she danced with George McLanahan of New York, whom she will marry next Jan. 6. The bride-to-be, a night club singer, obviously is somewhat more "camera-broke" than her fiance, who is blinking in surprise as the photographer's shutter clicks in a Boston hotel ballroom. Sally says her forthcoming marriage will not interfere with her career.

KNEW ONLY LETTERS RUNNING "FROM A TO Z"

NEW YORK, Aug. 19—(AP) Court-room spectators at the James J. Hines trial were amused by testimony of Julius Williams, red-haired negro, when he said he could not read, although he could write when someone gave him the letters to put down.

Their amusement changed to down-right hilarity when he added that he did not know all the alphabet, only the letters "from A to Z."

LAST OF GREAT TEAM IN VAUDEVILLE DIES

NEW YORK, Aug. 19—(AP)—The great old vaudeville comedy team of McIntyre and Heath was reunited last night—in death.

Thomas K. Heath, co-star in the "coon buck" dance, the famous skit "The Ham Tree" and other successes of half a century, died of a heart attack at his home in Setauket, Long Island, at the age of 85, just a year after the passing of his partner.

Heath never knew McIntyre was dead. Stricken with paralysis just as McIntyre was dying in Connecticut, Heath lay an invalid for a year as his family kept the news from him.

The two formed their famous team more than 60 years ago in San Antonio, Texas, and trouped in minstrel shows, burlesque and vaudeville and musical comedy until 1934.

JAIL TERM FOR THE WIFE OF DESPERADO

BALTIMORE, Aug. 19—(AP)—Judge Samuel K. Dennis sentenced Mrs. Barbara Bird, wife of Charles Bird, midwestern desperado, to 30 days in jail today upon her conviction of being an accessory in one of her husband's seven holdups here in recent weeks.

England has 15,000 "foster mothers" registered; these foster mothers are those who take care of other women's children.

CLAIMS OPPOSITION FROM A. E. MORGAN

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Aug. 19.—(AP)—David E. Lilienthal, youthful-appearing TVA director, testified today Dr. Arthur E. Morgan, ousted TVA chairman, opposed any step toward mediation of the Berry marble claims on the broad grounds of ethics and good citizenship.

Lilienthal gave a congressional investigation committee an account of a meeting February 24, 1937, at which TVA directors and Senator George L. Berry (D. Tenn.) discussed Berry's claims for damages to marble and mineral holdings flooded by Norris lake.

Previously Lilienthal had said he believed "it was our job" to handle the Berry claims and "not to burden" President Roosevelt with the matter.

The witness said he suggested to the board that if Arthur Morgan insisted on going to the president that such a course would not halt conciliation.

"I said if he did go he shouldn't go and whisper in the ear of the president, but the Arthur Morgan and Senator Berry should go together and state their cases," Lilienthal aserted, adding, however, he was opposed to any such action.

INCREASE FOR LOADINGS OF CARS THE PAST WEEK

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19—(AP)—The Association of American Railroads reported today 589,561 cars of revenue freight were loaded during the week ending last Saturday.

This was an increase of 5,511 cars, or 0.9 per cent, compared with the preceding week; a decrease of 184,221, or 23.8 per cent, compared with a year ago, and a decrease of 314,596, or 34.8 per cent, compared with 1930.

Important in the manufacture of high explosives during the World War, picric acid now is being used to combat two serious diseases, infantile paralysis and sleeping sickness.

OLD MINT AT CARSON CITY IS TO BE SOLD

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 19.—(AP)—Does anybody want to buy a mint?

It's not a confidence game. The government really wants to sell one.

The old Carson City, Nev., mint hasn't coined any money since 1893. But there might be some loose $20 gold pieces in the two-story stone structure, said William Arthur Newman, district engineer for the treasury's public building branch, in announcing it would go on the block.

Newman said gold coins frequently dropped through cracks in the floor when the mint was handling gold by the ton.

"The boys didn't bother much because times were easy," Newman said.

COUNT IS TO CHAT WITH COUNTESS

VENICE, Italy, Aug. 19—(AP)—Speculation in Venice society as to the possibility of a reconciliation between Count Court Haugwitz-Reventlow and his American-born wife increased today when it was learned the couple would have a second talk tonight.

The count, whose separation from the former Barbara Hutton was approved by the Danish ministry of justice Aug. 9, was to have left for Budapest this morning but postponed his departure. He arrived from Budapest by airplane yesterday and the couple had an hour's talk in a quiet corner of a hotel bar.

The countess has been in Venice since Aug. 10.

OPPOSES PLAN ON WATERWAY

TORONTO, Aug. 19—(Canadian Press)—Premier Mitchell Hepburn of Ontario told Dominion Prime Minister Mackenzie King today the Ontario government was opposed to the projected St. Lawrence river waterway project on "economic" grounds.

Hepburn made Ontario's stand known in a letter he sent to the prime minister within a day after President Roosevelt urged in an address at Ivy Lea, Canada, that the United States and Canadian governments cooperate to develop the river for greater electric power and shipping facilities.

"Irrespective of any propaganda or squeeze play that might be concocted by you," Hepburn wrote Mackenzie King, "you may rest assured that this (Ontario) government will resist any effort to force us to expend public funds in such an unwarranted manner or to the people of Ontario an additional burden of debt and taxation."

KIDNAPER DIES OF GUNSHOT WOUNDS

By The Associated Press.

GRAND RAPIDS, Minn., Aug. 19—Gunshot wounds, inflicted when he fled officers who sought to question him about the kidnaping of a St. Louis couple, brought death today to Otis J. Meredith, 21, of St. Louis.

Meridith and his companion, John Couch, were trapped by authorities at the home of the former's father-in-law near Effie, Minn., Monday night. Couch surrendered. Meridith was shot when he attempted to flee.

Federal men said the pair admitted kidnaping Miss Peggy Gross and Daniel C. Fahey, Jr., in St. Louis Friday night and taking them to the outskirts of Minneapolis.

Meridith's mother, expected from St. Louis, had not arrived. His 19-year-old wife, Vera, asserting she was "through with him," had remained at the home of her father, Charles Rootes, near Effie.

Couch has been bound over to the September term of court on the kidnaping charge.

PRESIDENT TO TAKE PEEP AT FATHER DIVINE'S PLACE

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Aug. 19—(AP)—President Roosevelt is going out on his front lawn and take a look at Father Divine's new "Heaven" across the Hudson river.

Asked at a press conference what he thought about establishment of the negro religious resort, Mr. Roosevelt replied he would take a look.

The new "heaven" was sold to Father Divine in July by Howland Spencer, an opponent of Mr. Roosevelt's policies.

The guests spent some time compiling helpful lists and housekeeping hints for the bride-to-be, presenting them to her in a note book. A number of games appropriate for a kitchen shower were participated in, with awards going to those having the highest scores. Later in the evening, a large box and a basket were delivered to the guest of honor. In the box she found many useful and attractive articles for her "pantry shelf," each bearing a clever notation.

NOEL EXCITED AS POWER ARRIVES

NOEL, Mo., Aug. 19—(AP)—Jesse James and his gang of outlaws couldn't have caused more excitement than actor Tyrone Power did today when he arrived to make the movie version of the notorious bandit's life.

Power came here with Director Henry King and went directly to the five room air-conditioned bungalow rented for his stay here. The home is on a bluff overlooking the Elk river and is in the center of 15 acres of rugged country, one mile from town.

OPINION AGAINST POWER TO BORROW

JEFFERSON CITY, Aug. 19.—(AP)—Attorney General Roy McKittrick's office held today the State Department of Agriculture does not have power to borrow funds from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to aid in rehabilitating Missouri State Fair buildings at Sedalia.

Charles W. Green, secretary of the fair, in asking the opinion said a PWA project was planned for the rehabilitation work and that if the state's share of the cost could be borrowed from the RFC, "it would be agreat help to us in our plans, for the reason that we would not have to ask the legislature for money for this work."

Green said the fair could pay the "money back over a period of years."

Assistant Attorney General Franklin E. Reagan said in his opinion "nowhere do we find any authority for the State Department of Agriculture to borrow money." The fair is under the jurisdiction of the department.

FAMOUS COWPUNCHERS IN BIG RODEO SCENE OF MUSICAL FILM

The cream of the country's rodeo champs worked at the Warner Bros. Studio in the spectacular scenes depicting a rodeo at Madison Square Garden which were filmed for "Cowboy from Brooklyn," which opens at the Liberty theatre Sunday.

Among the outstanding cowboys who performed were Benny Corbett, bronco rider, champion relay ride and world's champion Roman standing rider, holding this latter championship for six consecutive years; Johnny Slater, world's champion bronco rider; Lloyd Saunders, champion bulldogger; George Williams, champion trick rider; Kansas Moehring, who won the title of world's champion cowboy at the Pendleton Roundup in 1929; Earl Dobbins, champion trick rider; Buster Wiles and Ab Hudkins, singing cowboys and Artie Ortega, famed Mission Indian cowboy.

In 1925, Ortega and Benny Corbett made a tour of the Orient with Jack Burroughs and E. K. Fernandez in a carnival and wild west show. During the World War, Kansas Moehring and Ortega supplied the government with horses for a remount depot.

The cowboys provided the colorful background against which Dick Powell, in the title role, Pat O'Brien, Priscilla Lane, Dick Foran, Johnnie Davis and other players worked in the spectacular new musical.

Gene apparently is warbling pretty in this scene from "The Old Corral" in which he does vengeance on some big city gangsters that try their tactics in the western country.

Gus Schrader Returns to Defend Standing As No. 1 Pilot

The eyes of mid-America's racing world will be focused on the Missouri State Fair Sunday afternoon when twenty-seven steely-nerved daredevils roar over the fast Sedalia racing strip in a six-event national circuit championship automobile race classic.

Headed by world's dirt track champion, Gus Schrader, and better than a dozen serious contenders for the 1938 world's dirt track crown, drivers from eleven different states and two foreign countries will strike up a flirtation with the grim reaper in their attempt to garner cash purses, new records and the all-important points that will determine the world's dirt track automobile racing pilot for the current year.

With better than a half score of the nation's leading dirt track speedway and road racing stars just a few points below the standingf of champion Gus Schrader, and within striking distance of the costliest of all titles in the sports world, from the standpoint of life and limb, indications point that Schrader, America's No. 1 racing figure, will have his hands full defending his present position on the pedestal of speed and that Missouri racing fans will be in for a torried afternoon of motor madness.

CHALLENGES THICK FOR ARMSTRONG

By DREW MIDDLETON

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—(AP)—The brown buzzsaw was at a dead stop today and, while Henry Armstrong started his first real rest since he left St. Louis in a box car to earn his bread with his fists, challenges flew thick and fast around the little man who is featherweight, lightweight and welterweight champion of the world.

He won his third title from Lou Ambers Wednesday night but some of the magic surrounding his name vanished. His profession saw him at the finish the new lightweight champion, but bleeding, groggy and exhausted—and took heart.

They all want to fight him now, Ambers most of all. He is an ex-lightweight champion today but he was never more popular

Without detracting from Lou's showing, it might be noted that he fought a tired, listless Armstrong. Henry is very stale. He has fought almost continuously for two years and the battles have sapped his magnificent vitality.

"Sure I'd like to fight Lou again," said Henry, very battered. "But I think I have a rest coming. Besides the doctor tells me it will take at least three months for this cut in my lip to heal. Lou gave me a great fight. But with three months rest I can beat him worse than last night."

Henry won't fight until next winter, Manager Eddie Mead says, probably meeting Cefernio Garcia, the coast welterweight, and Henry will put his 147-pound title on the line.

"Then if Ambers still wants a match we'll give it to him," said Mead.

The Sports Roundup

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—(AP)—Poor old Armstrong, he must be slipping—his last two opponents stuck the distance.....The three H's of the Green Bay Packers—Herber, Huston and Hinkle—have incorporated and are holding out until each gets what he wants.....Jimmy Kelly, the Greenwich Village hot spot king, was run in by a cop for refusing to stop arguing on Broadway over the Ambers-Armstrong outcome .....Joe Dimaggio tells you how it feels to be on the receiving end of the old razzberry in this week's Lib.....No more outdoor boxing shows here this year.....future biz goes into the Garden.

Believe it or not: Using only a baseball bat and a billiard cue, Ertie Thomlinson toured a nine-hole Oklahoma City golf course the other day in only 49 strokes .....And two southpaws finished one, two in a tournament at Moberly, Mo.....Radio listeners thought Ambers had won—just like a lot of same thought Farr beat Joe Louis.

It used to be the boys would settle for one "white hope"..... now they're looking for five..... That many of the recognized boxing classes are commanded by Negroes.....Instead of taking it off, Babe Ruth has been adding poundage since joining up with the Dodgers.....'Chalky" Wright, the featherweight Eddie Mead has signed as "policeman" for Henry Armstrong, used to chauffeur Mae West around Hollywood .....Dolph Camilli, big Dodger first sacker, is a brother of the Frankie Campbell who died after a bout with Max Baer on the coast some time back.....Armstrong ought to watch himself—he lands far too many below the belt.

How in the world could Referee Billy Kavanagh score the 13th—far and away Ambers' best round—an even heat?.....Cubs are going to get out an injunction against Joe Medwick of the Cards.....that guy is poison to their catchers.....twice foul tips from Joe's bat have put Assistant Catcher Ken O'Dea on the shelf .....and the other day Gabby Hartnett, the old bell ram himself, caught one of Joe's tips on the end of a finger and went to the sidelines.....If the Bruin catchers never see Joe again it will be soon enough.....Something is in the air between Mike Jacobs and the Garden.

Today's tall one: At Menomonee Falls, Wis., the other day Pitcher Louis Johnson was dusted off twice then hit on the arm .....swinging his bat he rushed out in anger as if to commit mayhem on the opposing pitcher..... halfway between the plate and the mound he turned and heaved his war club over a screen behind the plate.....It bashed in the hood of an auto.....just as the umps was about to banish the irate player, he yelled: "Ouch! That's my own car!" The umpire decided the punishment was sufficient.

DIXCEL SAFETY CRUISER HERE

Free Moving Pictures

The "Dixcel Safety Cruiser"—a new and effective instrument in the cause of highway safety—will make its appearance in Sedalia and at the Missouri State Fair.

Resembling a water-craft with its pilot house and its portholes, the huge "vessel" broadcasts through its public address system its warning and its lesson of Safety to the public.

The Dixcel Cruiser will "dock" south of the Education building to present a free moving picture show to the public. A gripping safety film, 'Saving Seconds" as well as comedy pictures, are on the evening's program to which all are invited.

During the educational journey of the Dixcel Safety Cruiser in this section of the state, it is being directed by John McMullan, division manager of the Milton Oil company.

HUBBELL COMES UP WITH AN AILING PITCHING WING

Ace of New York Giants Be on Sidelines For A Week or Two

By SID FEDOR
Associated Press Sports Writer

King Carl Hubbell joined Lefty Grove on the sore arm list today, and the New York Giants' pennant stock, like that of the Boston Red Sox before it, hit the skids in a neat nose-dive.

Hubbell, clubbed by the Brooklyn Dodgers, 5-3, yesterday, came up with an ailing pitching wing that may necessitate an operation. It will definitely keep him on the sidelines for at least a week or two, and may prevent him from taking his place on the firing line the rest of the year.

Here are the two greatest left-handers of their day, Old Square-pants and Old Mose—probably the most feared pitching pair in the game in the last six or eight years—and both shelved in the same month. Grove's arm went "dead," and now the Hub has a painful elbow trouble. A chipped bone may be revealed when x-rays are taken of Hubbell's elbow next week.

Pitched To Pennants

There are many who don't put the screwball ace among the all-time southpaw greats. He never had the stuff or the blinding speed of a Grove. But he has playing "brains"; he has been the Giants' meal-ticket for at least five years; he has pitched them into three pennants in that time, and he has a competitive temperament, a coolness under fire, never surpassed in any sport.

Dr. J. Spencer Speed, the Memphis bone specialist, has been asked to meet the Giants either in Chicago Monday or St. Louis later in the week to x-ray, and if an operation is necessary—that is if a chipped bone is revealed—it will be performed immediately.

If Hubbell, the most reliable of the Giants' tossers, is out of action for the rest of the season, or for any length of time, the New Yorkers may just as well wrap up their pennant hopes and pack them in mothballs. They're five games back of the Pirates right now, with the season past the two-thirds mark.

Fortunately for Terry's Terriers, their setback yesterday did not send them farther in the hole, for the Pirates absorbed a 5-1 drubbing at the hands of the St. Louis Cardinals and Lefty Bob Weiland's four-hit flinging.

AXE SQUAD WRECKS HANDBOOK PLACES

CHICAGO, Aug. 19.—(AP)—After visits from the state's attorney's "axe squad," a couple of elaborately furnished racehorse handbook establishments today looked like they had been swept by a hurricane.

The 112 Club at that number on East Superior street was the latest to feel the "direct action" campaign started by State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney after repeated failure to gain convictions against handbook operators and employes.

Eight policemen went to work with axes yesterday after chasing out 200 patrons, of whom 75 were women. In an hour the interior of the club was a mass of debris. Reduced to junk were 150 green leather and chromium chairs, an ornate lunch counter, walnut veneered wall boards, modernistic lamps and other fixtures.

On the previous day the squad did the same thing to a 29 West Randolph street handbook.

Importance of Church Attendance Habit

Theodore Roosevelt said, "You may worship God anywhere at any time, but the chances are that you will not do so, unless you have first to worship Him somewhere in some special place at some particular time."

What the great American was really pointing out was the need we all have of some technique of worship, regularly employed, if we are to attain reality in our quest.

Unless a thing is done regularly, it is not done easily. Desultory attendance at church is hard. One has to fight a battle every Sunday and no one is strong enough to survive an ordeal like that. Why not accept the invitation and COME TO CHURCH NEXT SUNDAY?

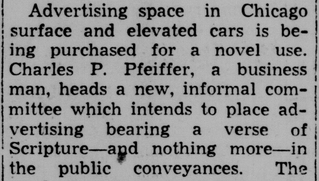
It is reported that tourists are attending religious services on shipboard in ever-increasing numbers, and most liners are now equipped with permanent altars for the formal ceremonies of the different faiths. This provision has been called forth by the growing inquiry of prospective tourists with respect to the facilities for worship on shipboard.

Visitors to the New York World's Fair in 1939, it is announced, will have a sanctuary to which they can go for rest or prayer. The $300,000 Temple of Religion will be topped by a 150-foot tower, and will be shut off from the hurly-burly of the rest of the fair by a 20-foot wall. The Temple is intended to represent "the religious spirit in American life."

Advertising space in Chicago surface and elevated cars is being purchased for a novel use. Charles P. Pfeiffer, a business man, heads a new, informal committee which intends to place advertising bearing a verse of Scripture—and nothing more—in the public conveyances. The funds for 240 such posters, to be displayed for one year, have been provided in recent weeks of a quiet campaign.

The Friends Service Committee, which has made such a name for itself because of the fine type of practical Christian enterprises in which it engages, has made plans for an experimental rehabilitation project in the soft coal regions of Western Pennsylvania, where 20,000 miners will never again have full-time work in the mines. On a 200-acre tract fifty miners and their families are to be located and this project will be a testing ground for large scale rehabilitation through subsistence farming, education in the trades and the introduction of new industries. The project is indorsed by private industry, organized labor, government officials and philanthropic foundations. It is initiated through a fund to which coal and steel industrial leaders have contributed. Special attention will be given to the training of the children in other occupations, thus breaking the tradition of father-son in the mines.



You Are Old Enough To Know Better

Too many parents when correcting their children fortify themselves back of some statement such as "You are old enough to know better," when possibly the parent is at fault and ought to have known better than to thus attack the child.

Let the parent enalyze the situation by answering such questions as these: Has the child had sufficient opportunity to know better? Is not too much expected? Since learning is a slow process, has due patience been exercised? Are you sure that there is not a handicap for which an allowance ought to be made? Have there been circumstances or barriers in the way of knowing better? Would it not be better to say, "Let us reason together?"

Then, to end it all up, it might be well to say: "There was a time when I did not know better."—D. Carl Yower.

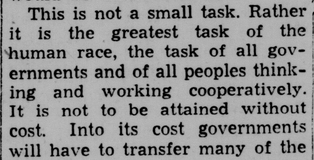
The Treason of War

Suppose we ruled that the highest form of treason, by indvidual or group, would be to say one word or commit one act that was intended to incite our country to hate, or misunderstanding, or to a state of mind provocative of war; and the greatest patriot would be he who contributed new techniques for understanding and peace.

In such an atmosphere, commissions representing both countries could easily reach a conclusion of the difficulty that would be satisfactory to all. Recourse to arms would be undreamed of.

This is not a small task. Rather it is the greatest task of the human race, the task of all governments and of all peoples thinking and working cooperatively. It is not to be attained without cost. Into its cost governments will have to transfer many of the millions now spent in war-producing armaments.

What if one generation today "sacrifices" all its pomps and vanities that a thousand coming generations may live!



What is the value of daily vacation church schools?

While a consciousness of God does not always became evident as a problem, yet we recognize that even normal attitudes need fostering and guidance in order to grow. Probably no part of the church school program can accomplish this more adequately than the daily vacation church school. The informal program for the children allows for natural experiences of fellowship with each other and with God, both because of more opportunities which follow in frequent succession, and because of the richer program of activities through which boys and girls can be led to experience companionship with God in ways which have meaning to them.

Daily vacation church school helps the children to understand the life and teachings of Jesus, and to grow in love and loyalty to his cause. The more consecrated study made possible by the vacation church school gives opportunity for better understanding of the facts and background of Jesus' life and the spirit of his ministry. Growing, developing personalities achieve an understanding of and loyalty to the church as a fellowship of those seeking to know and do God's will as Jesus has shown it to us.

ANSWERS TO "DO YOU KNOW"

1. "on the seventh day thou shall rest."
2. "courage."
3. Peter. John 21:3.
4. Andrew. Mark 1:16.
5. A very great catch was made.

JOAN BEALER

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Encel Bealer, Route 5, Sedalia, one year old, August 13.

The Challenge of Christian Motherhood. I Samuel 1:9-18; 2:1-5 for Sunday, August 21.

Hannah, noble wife, yearned to be a good mother with children in whom and through whom she might live after she had done her work on earth.

V. 9. "So Hannah rose up after they had eaten in Shiloh. Now Eli the priest sat upon a seat by a post of the temple of the Lord." Note that Hannah in attending the Passover feast, put God first in her life. To put God first is fundamental to true nobility of character.

V. 10. "And she was in bitterness of soul, and prayed unto the Lord and wept sore." The fact that she had no child with the taunting of Peninnah, her rival wife, drove her to despair. The way out was through sincere prayer.

V. 11. "And she vowed a vow, and said, O Lord of hosts, if thou wilt look upon the affliction of thine handmaid, and remember me, and forget not thine handmaid, but will give to thine handmaid a man child then I will give him unto the Lord all the days of his life, and there shall come no razor upon his head." Effectual prayer must have in it a great and noble purpose. Hannah purposed that the son born was to render service to the Lord by means of a holy consecrated life. Children thus born are given the best start.

Vs. 12, 13. "And it came to pass, as she continued praying before the Lord, that Eli marked her mouth. Now Hannah, she spake in her heart; only her lips moved, but her voice was not heard; therefore Eli thought she had been drunken." True prayer is in the heart having an intense and profound desire in keeping with God's will. Often expressions from the lips are misunderstood but nevertheless by them we are often judged by others.

V. 14. "And Eli said unto her, How long wilt thou be drunken? Put away thy wine from thee." Eli had had experience with drunkenness because of his profligate sons, and he gave her the same advice that he may have given them, namely, to go and sleep off the effects of the debauch. Too often the evil of drinking causes the innocent to be blamed.

V. 15. "And Hannah answered and said, No, my Lord, I am a woman of sorrowful spirit; I have drunk neither wine nor strong drink, but have poured out my soul before the Lord." Note the two uses of the "pour." Hannah was quick witted as well as very sincere in her petition; she took plenty of time to commune with God. Her prayer was not effervescent but like a great heaving fountain bursting out of her and flowing like a geyser. She declared "Out of the abundance of my complaint and grief have I spoken hitherto."

V. 17. "Then Eli answered and said, Go in peace; and God of Israel grant thee thy petition that thou hast asked of her." Hannah prayed through to victory. She lived right and she prayed right. When once the people of this nation live right and pray right, all our ills, our problems social, economic and national will be solved.

V. 18. "And she said, Let thine handmaid find grace in thy sight. So the woman went her way, and did eat, and her countenance was no more sad." Hannah had faith that her petition would be granted so that after all it is the victory of faith that is the basis for a possible later realization.

V. 18. And Hannah prayed, and said, My heart rejoiceth in the Lord, mine horn is exalted in the Lord; my mouth is enlarged over mine enemies; because I rejoice in thy salvation." Now the throbbing prayer with the dominant petition is changed into a prayer of thanksgiving. Not that to often we fail to make enough of gratitude when we pray. She became poetic using figures of speech expressive of the deepest gratitude. It was the custom to tilt the horn, a part of a woman's head gear, in an upright position when experiencing joy. The taunts of others because she is childless are cast aside for she now praises God giving him all the glory.

V. 3. "Talk no more so exceeding proudly; let not arrogancy came out of your mouth; for the Lord is a God of Knowledge and by him actions are weigher." Hannah knew what it was to be oppressed by enemies, yet she disclaims all right to take vengance. She leaves it with the Lord.

Vs. 4. 5. "The bows of the mighty men are broken and they that stumbled are girded with strength." Those who have faith in God will receive an abundance and those who have no faith will be the losers.

The Challenge of Christian Motherhood. For Sunday, August 21.

1. How far may one go in making a bargain with God?
2. What special preparation did Hannah give her son preparatory to his leaving home.
3. What do you regard the characteristics of a good mother?
4. What points of helpfulness are seen in Hannah's prayer?
5. What religious value is in the dedication to God of little children, as done by baptism?

Clericus says, "Hannah's consecration in dedicating her son to the service of God should be a lesson to parents in every age and a rebuke to those who never think of their children in relation to God's great plans."

Lesson Prayer: "We would dedicate our children to God in early life and set before them a holy example as an inspiration to live holy lives."

• RAISING A FAMILY

MOTHER'S PLEADING CANNOT MAKE ROSES GROW ON HOP VINES

Take your boys and girls as you find them. They won't be perfect and they won't even try to be. They must get weary, these youngsters, having to pretend all the time that they're what they're not.

In home life, the sooner this becomes an accepted fact, the sponer everybody will throw off the veil of pretense.

Then each one can start from scratch and try to improve the real "I" in him. Everybody has a lot of self-respect. Left alone much of the time, he discovers ways of self-help and self-improvement.

I don't mean, of course, that each member of the family can do entirely as he pleases, but that the freer he is from impotent and irritating reminders, the more likely he will be to develop a sixth sense of obligation right in himself.

Expect Them To Be Natural

However that is, parents should not be disappointed when Mary renigs in helping with the chores and John is cranky about his lessons. Mary is Mary and John is John. They may be told about their shortcomings and prodded a little, but why not stop trying to make them into Clarice and Cuthbert next door? You can't do that.

Mary knows she hates housework. You don't have to tell her. Give her a chance to help herself by assigning things that she can't very well resist, or help her to overcome her pet aversion by real teachings with interest behind it.

She must respect orders, naturally; this is a grand thing for everybody. No argument, no nagging and no excuses. This snapping to it is pepper for anyone once in so often. We all need it. But not all the time, or even much of the time.

Let Children Learn

John hates to study. Well, now, just why should everybody study? Maybe I'm wrong, but it does seem to me that a whole trainload of youngsters might turn into more diligent people if they never saw a book.

John may always be behind. Let him drag along for a while when he gets to heavy. Don't carry him always, or even prod him. If he has a dime's worth of ambition, it won't take too long for him to see that he has to hump himself to catch up. John is John, you see. If he can't see the blessing of an education himself, he'll never see it by chin talk. He will run for the band wagon, I've a notion.

My theme being parents and home life, I take this stand today to help you all sleep better tonight.. Do what you can in your way, but let the children discover that the fruits of the neglected tree are bitter. On the other hand, why should we attempt to grow roses on hop vines, or vice versa? Nature has provided other compensations, and through these gifts each child should amount to something.

NEXT: The preference child.

500,000 American Workers Exposed Regularly to Silicosis Menace.

The harmful effects of dust are now generally recognized. It seems strange that more study was not given to this matter in previous years, since ancient writers 400 and 500 years ago recognized that miners and stonecutters were likely to have trouble with their lungs from the inhaling of dust associated with those occupations.

In silicosis the lungs are inflamed following the inhalation of silicon dioxide, which is a form of sand. Silicosis has been found among workers in mining, in the quarrying of granite, sandstone, limestone, slate, rock, and crystal and in stone finishing, the making of pottery, the making of sandpaper and scouring papers, glass manufacturing, spray painting, brick making, and in construction.

It is estimated that about 500,000 workers in the United States are regularly exposed to silica dust. Studies of the lungs of miners indicate that as many as 45 per cent may suffer with silicosis, and that many suffer with combinations of silicosis and tuberculosis.

* * *

Apparently the size of the dust particle, the number of dust particles in the air, the mineral content of the rock, and the length of time that the worker is exposed to the dust are all factors of importance in the development of silicia in the lungs of any worker.

This disease is insidious. The silica may be inhaled for a long time without causing any symptoms. Then there begins to be shortness of breath, which is worse after exertion. Later, pain in the chest, coughing, sweating at night, bleeding from the lung, loss of weight, and other symptoms may appear.

The definite diagnosis of silicosis is not usually made, however, until an X-ray picture of the lungs has been taken. Then in the X-ray picture the doctor finds evidence of inflammatory changes and the formation of fibrous tissues which are typical of this disease.

As yet no method has been discovered for treating silicosis and curing it promptly. All of our efforts today are bent on stopping the progress of the disease and preventing its appearance in the worker.

Fans, exhaust pumps and filters are used to decrease the concentration of dust. Workers are encouraged to wear masks to prevent the inhalation of dusts. Just as soon as the first signs of silicosis appear, workers are moved to other occupations in which they are not exposed to the inhalation of silica dust.

The condition is now widely recognized, and states as well as various federal agencies are going to determine the best methods of stopping its progress.

Rolling Down To Rio

BREATHES there the man who has not wished that he might some day go "rolling down to Rio." For this cosmopolitan, magnificent capital of Brazil intensifies somehow the romantic urge of all.

And the world does come to Rio de Janeiro, sailing up the spacious bay of Guanabara and on past Sugar Loaf Mountain, the city's most distinguished landmark. And what does it find?

It finds a city of colorful gardens, of broad promenades, sidewalk cafes, of men and women dressed in clothes from Paris but with a manner all their own. It finds a city whose buildings are for the most part simple but resplendent in vivid coloring. Many of the new homes cling to the hillside below the street and are entered from the roof.

Here vendors lend an Oriental touch, the sacred ox of India is the beast of burden, and modern automobiles slip along the newer pavements. And here in the National Library and other beautiful public buildings is preserved the historic heritage of Brazil and of all South America. In recent years, scientific public health work has materially raised the standard of living in this city of 1,000,000. A view of the harbor and city is shown here on a current Brazilian stamp.

LEADING ISSUES OF STOCKS ADVANCE

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—(AP)—The stock market turned on its rallying steam in the latter part of today's session and leading issues, paced by the rails, pushed up fractions to 3 points.

The forward swing followed word from Washington that the Association of American Railroads would have an "important" announcement to make before the close. Wall Street immediately jumped to the conclusion this might mean a wage cut compromise. Buyers got aboard hte carrier stocks and other groups joined the excursion. There was a let down near the finish when the A. A. R. disclosed it had merely filed a petition for the extension of coal rate increases.

While volume broadened on the move, it was not sufficient to put the ticker tape behind and, in the closing hour, momentum died down considerably and extreme gains were reduced substantially. Transfers were around 800,000 shares, almost double yesterday's turnover.

In addition to the wishful thinking regarding carriers, trading spirits brightened perceptibly on European advices. the Czechoslovak government, through the intercession of British Viscount Runciman, had agreed to compromise with the Sudeten Germans and tender them important posts in the administration. This was taken to mean at least a temporary lessening of war dangers.

Business news, on the whole, continued as a moderately buoying influence and did much to halt the light selling which handicapped the list Thursday.

ELECTROCUTE TWO AT TEXAS PRISON

HUNTSVILLE, Tex. Aug. 19.—(AP)—Two men, one of whom killed his wife with a soda pop bottle, were electrocuted at the state penitentiary here early today.

Gollan H. Morgan of El Paso, convicted of slaying his wife with a bottle during a card game, was the first to die.

Next was Jesse Polance, who sang "to the sweetest girl in San Antonio" just before he was strapped in the chair. Polance, who died for slaying a bus driver in a holdup, said he composed the song in "death row."

HORSE SWAPPERS LIVEN THINGS UP

ALMOND, N. Y., Aug. 19.—(AP)—"Swappers are getting hot," President George Kame of the the World Horse Traders' convention said today as shrewd western New York and Pennsylvania horsemen prepared for a whirlwind finish to their annual meet tomorrow.

Fourteen-year old Lloyd Carnes rode to the convention from Bath N. Y., on a saddle horse," which he immediately turned over to Ralph Jaynes for a work horse.

The swappers watched a tug-o-war between two mules, started by a bet on which was the strongest.

The owner of the winning mule offered to flip a coin to pair them up. He lost the coin toss and the winner sold the pair on the spot for $25. Bert Burrell of Wellsville, N. Y., later said he unloaded the mule team for $100.

"An excellent deal," he said.

Harry Blaisure of Montrose, Pa., said: "My grandfather was a trader. It's in my blood. I love to beat the other guy."

Blaisure declared he has traded his way from Pennsylvania to New Kakota and back again.

The swappers gathered on the Kame farm, arriving by horse and buggy, old cars, trailers, trucks and house cars. John Bond of Bliss, N. Y., drove a team 70 miles to the convention.

Ray Shaeffer of Berwick, Pa., came the longest distance—224 miles.

CONFESSES KILLING OF SWEETHEART

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—(AP)—with a priest at his side. John Bellinger 33-year-old English born clerk, entered a police station early today and confessed the slaying of his sweetheart.

He told an astonished detective that a few minutes before he had shot Miss Marie Joyce, 25-year-old private secretary, through the back of the head with a sawed-off rifle.

He handed a leather brief case to the detective. Inside was the gun. "I carried it around all evening," said Bellinger.

He thanked the priest, the Rev. Father Joseph H. Sheehan of the Church of St. John the Evangelist, for going with him to the police station, then was taken to Miss Joyce's apartment.

There in the hall, in front of the door of her second floor apartment, lay the body of Bellinger's sweetheart.

Last night they had dinner together. It started with a couple of cocktails and a quarrel. Bellinger said he wanted to announce their engagement and Miss Joyce wanted to call their romance quits.

The quarrel continued.

At Miss Joyce's apartment house, as she took the key out of her handbag, Bellinger opened his briefcase. The shot made little noise.

AUTO PRODUCTION SHOWS INCREASE

DETROIT, Aug. 19—(AP)—Ward's automotive reports today estimated the week's assemblies in the automobile industry as 23,940 cars and trucks compared with 13,790 last week, crediting most of the rise to the resumption of operations at the Ford Motor company.

Output this week last year was 93,339 units. The survey predicted a "slightly lower level" next week, but added that the industry was "embarked on a consistent, steady rise which would carry it into the winter."

FRIENDSHIP WITH CANADA VOICED BY PRESIDENT

Fellowship of Americas Stressed In Address At Kingston

VIGOROUS SLAP ON "BRUTALITY"

"Devastation of War Tragic On Processes of Men's Minds"

By WILLIAM B. ARDERY

KINGSTON, Ont., Aug. 18.—(AP)—President Roosevelt asserted emphatically today the people of the United States "will not stand idly by if domination af Canadian soil is threatened by any other empire."

The chief executive, speaking at Queens University, expressed sincere friendship for Canada as a member in "the fellowship of the Americans." He added:

"We in the Americas are no longer a far away continent, to which the eddies of controversies beyond the seas could bring no interest or no harm.

"Instead, we in the Americas have become a consideration to every propaganda office and to every general staff beyond the seas. * * *

"The Dominion of Canada is part or the sisterhood of the British Empire. I give to you assurance that the people of the United States will not stand idly by if domination of Canadian soil is threatened by any other empire."

Vigorous Against "Brutality"

The President, speaking only two days after Secretary Hull's call for a seven-point program to bring about world peace, spoke in vigorous terms about "wanton brutality" and "undemocratic regimentation" by a government.

He did not, however, name any foreign nation.

Through Mr. Roosevelt's address ran the theme that civilization and education transcend international borders, and that the Americas now are largely responsible for maintaining the tradition of a free interchange of ideas between nations.

Referring to the United States and Canada, the President said as good neighbors the nations are "true friends, because we maintain our own rights with frankness.

Then, discussing the workings of public opinion, the chief executive had this to say:

"We can not prevent our people from having an opinion in regard to wanton brutality, in regard to undemocratic regimentation, in regard to misery inflicted on helpless peoples, or in regard to violations of accepted individual rights.

"No country where thought is free can prevent every fireside and home within its borders from considering the evidence for itself and rendering its own verdicts; and the sum total of these conclusions of educated men and women still, in the long run, become the national verdict.

"That is what we mean when we say that public opinion ultimately governs policy. It is right and just that this should be the case."

Devestations of War

The President, who arranged to travel from here to Ivy Lea, Ontario, for an international bridge dedication, told his audience in the Queens University stadium that many know, "that of all the devastations of war, none is more tragic than the destruction which it brings to the processes of men's minds."

Tracing a close connection tween nations of this hemis, and events in other nations, Mr. Roosevelt said that " a few days ago a whisper, fortunately untrue, raced around the world that armies standing over against each other in unhappy array were to be set in motion."

"In a few short hours," he continued, "the effect of that whisper had been registered in Montreal and New York, in Ottawa and in Washington, in Toronto and in Chicago, in Vancouver and in San Francisco.

"Your business men and ours felt it alike; your farmers and ours heard it alike; your young men and ours wondered what effect this might have on their lives.

"We in the Americas are no longer a far away continent, to which the eddies of controversies beyond the seas could bring no interest or no harm.

"Happily you and we, in friendship and in entire understanding, can look clear-eyed at these possibilities, resolving to leave no pathway unexplored and no technique undeveloped which may, if our hopes are realized, continue to the peace of the world.

"Even if these hopes are disappointed, we can assure each other that this hemisphere at least shall remain a strong citadel where civilization can flourish unimpaired."

TRAIN IN RIVER DUE FLASH FLOOD

PRATT, Kas., Aug. 18.—The locomotive and 30 cars of a Rock Island freight train piled into the Cimarron river at Arkalon early today, injuring three trainmen.

A flash flood down the river shortly after midnight partly washed out a bridge over the stream, causing the wreck.

Fireman C. M. Powell of Pratt was taken to a hospital at Liberal. His injuries were not determined. Engineer Walter Walker and Brakeman Holder, both of Pratt, were less seriously injured.

INQUIRY GROUP AWAITS RECORD IN BRIDGES CASE

Desires To Learn If "Peculiar Influence" Delayed Deportation

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18—The house committee investigating un-American activities endeavored to learn today from labor department records whether any "peculiar influence" had delayed deportation of Harry Bridges, CIO maritime leader, as a Communist and alien.

The labor department agreed to open its records to the committee in response to a request from Chairman Dies (D-Tex).

A committee member who declined to be quoted by name, said the department files might disclose a copy of a "certain document" which would explain why Bridges was not deported immediately.

The information was sought for use by Miss Margaret Kerr of Los Angeles in testimony before the committee. She is executive secretary of the Better America Federation, which Dies described as a patriotic league.

Await Security Document

The committee heard Miss Kerr's information about Bridges behind closed doors yesterday and decided not to make it public until the document was obtained.

(The labor department decided four months ago to postpone the deportation proceedings against Bridges pending appeal of a circuit court decision in another case that Communist party membership was not cause for deportation).

Meanwhile, the committee arranged for four witnesses from New York City to describe the recruiting of American youths for service in the Spanish civil war.

"They will explain how subversive elements in this country were responsible for them getting into the war," Dies said. "Some of them will be men who went across."

VACANCIES FILLED ON RELIEF GROUP

E. F. Hausam, Jr., and J. . Rosenthal have been appointed members of the Pettis County relief committee to take the places of W. P. Stanley, deceased, and E. W. Jones, who has moved to Columbia. This was made known at a joint meeting of the Pettis County Social Security Commission, C. A. Wisdom, Green Ridge, chairman, and the Pettis County relief committee, Mayor Julian H. Bagby, chairman, held Wednesday night.

The State Social Security commission has adopted a new policy whereby there will be no direct relief given to new employable cases, and instead they will be referred direct to the WPA. The county adopted the same policy. Those now on relief will still be taken care of and the new rules refer only to new applications for relief.

The committees are sponsoring an N. Y. A. sewing project which will employ forty young women from 18 to 24 years. The county committees will be responsible for the materials, and the N. Y. A. paying salaries, providing supervisors, and other expenses. The sewing room will be located on the second floor of the old postoffice building, in which building the social security commission headquarters are located.

The garments made in this sewing room will be used for needy families both for individuals and county institutions.

William B. Hert, Jr., who has charge of the county relief subscriptions made a report. There are still a number of pledges unpaid, and the committee members expressed the hope they would all soon be paid.

LILIENTHAL TO STAND TO TELL OF MARBLE DEAD

Digresses In Hearing On TVA, To Criticize Ousted Chairman

CLAIMS DISTORTION OF FACTS EVIDENT

Second Round of Testimony For Director Before Committee

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Aug. 18—TVA Director David E. Lilienthal took the stand today to give his first testimony on the Berry marble deal but digressed almost immediately to renew his criticism of Arthur E. Morgan, ousted TVA chairman.

Lilienthal said he had been criticized for "hiding" a memorandum which voiced suspicion of "fraud" in the marble and mineral claims of U. S. Senator George L. Berry and associates. Terming the criticism unjust, the TVA director said he had never seen the document prior to a condemnation hearing.

It was Iilienthal's second round of testimony before the congressional committee investigating TVA. In his first he reviewed his and incumbent Chairman Harcourt Morgan's squabble with the ousted director.

The memorandum was written in 1934 by Edwin C. Eckel, TVA geologist, to Bock. Lilienthal said it was in March, 1935, before he heard of the Berry claims.

At that time, he testified Bock advised the TVA directors of the claims and suggested a settlement if it could be arranged for $2,000 or $3 000."

Claims Facts Distorted

Lilienthal said "distortions of facts incident to the Eckel memorandum had resulted in unwarranted criticism of him and Harcourt Morgan since the investigation started.

"Are you intimating this committee is not giving you a fair chance to present the facts?" asked committee counsel Francis Biddle.

"No," the TVA director replied. "The necessity of this kind of procedure has caused it. It seems that if the New York Times would comment adversely on this episode, a clear picture has not been given. The Times is one of the greatest newspapers I know of."

Biddle — "Who are you critizing, the committee or the New York Times?"

Lilienthal — "Neither. I'm only trying to show the necessity for a well-rounded picture. I would like to summarize this matter."

Rep. Charles Wolverton (R-NJ) interrupted: "If your deference to a summarization means a canned publicity release by the TVA publicity department, I shall object. However, you will be given all the time needed to testify."

Allegations of Abuse

Negro workers on the TVA's Chickamauga dam have been kicked, cursed and treated "brutally" by their foremen and walking bosses, a witness charged today before a congressional committee investigating the Tennessee Valley Authority.

The appearance of TVA Director David E. Lilienthal to testify in the Berry marble case was delayed while the committee listened to a detailed account of alleged abuse from Charles H. Houston, negro, special counsel for the National Association For the Advancement of Colored People.

The committee considered the situation serious enough to warrant investigation, and ordered TVA Personnel Director Gordon R. Clapp to prepare a report on complaints.

SENTENCE BIRD TO 45 AND HALF YEARS

BALTIMORE, Aug. 18—Judge Samuel K. Dennis sentenced Charles Bird, midwestern desperado, to 45½ years in state prison today after the slight, 26 year old gunman pleaded guilty to seven robbery charges under which he might have been sentenced to 140 years.

"It is the painful duty of the court to impose such a sentence that will require you to spend the rest of your life in confinement, or be so old when you are released that you will no longer have the strength to prey upon the public," the judge told Bird.

His blonde wife, Barbara, 24, mother of a 14-month-old son, now with her parents in Cleveland, O., and who is expecting another child, pleaded innocent to the one robbery charge that is against her and her trial was begun immediately before a jury under Judge Samuel K. Dennis.

AWAIT REPORT ON STUDY OF VISCERA

MARCELINE, Mo., Aug. 18—C. Derk Green, Linn county attorney, said today the preliminary hearing for Dr. M. F. Lamance, Laclede osteopath, who is charged with the murder of his wife, would be held in abeyance until a report is received on the victim's viscera from the state highway patrol chemist at Jefferson City.

Green said he was uncertain when the report would be completed.

Another part of the viscera is being studied at Kansas City. It was left there yesterday by Dr. Gilbert Kroger, Purdin, Mo., osteopath, as he accompanied Dr. Lamance and his mother to the funeral of Mrs. Lamance at Williamsburg, Kas.

Dr. Lamance was returned to Tinney last night and was kept in the county jail. Green said he and Max Brown, sheriff, would continue their investigation and might question the former boxer late today.

Mrs. Lamance's body was found in the vegetable cellar in the backyard of her home late Sunday night after she had been missing for almost a week.

KIWANIANS HEAR PLANS ON RURAL ELECTRIFICATION

J. A. Muster Also Speaks Before Club On Possible CCC Camp

Proposed rural electrification in Pettis and Saline counties and a planned program of soil erosion prevention were subjects discussed by J. A. Muster, manager of the Osage Farms, speaking before the Sedalia Kiwanis Club in Hotel Bothwell Thursday at noon.

Mr. Muster explained the necessity of quick action by farmers of this county to communicate with County Agent J. U. Morris in signing up for the rural electrification movement before Saturday of this week if they expect to obtain $350,000 worth of federal aid.

Regarding the soil erosion program the speaker called attention to the fact that there was a possibility of obtaining the location of a CCC camp in Pettis county to aid erosion prevention. The Kiwanis Club voted unanimously to lend its support to obtaining this government service for the farmers.

The program was in charge of John Greenhagen, chairman, who introduced Tom Yount, of the club's agriculture committee, which is interested and lending its support to the farm program movement. Mr. Yount presented Mr. Muster.

Lee Montgomery told in an entertaining fashion of his recent eastern trip to his class reunion at Princeton and his western trip to Beverly Hills, Calif.

The club attendance gilft was received by Mrs. Nellie Monogan, two brooms from Harry Lindstrom.

Capt. F. F. Frakes, Kiwanian from Columbia, Tenn., who will do airplane stunt crashes at the Missouri State Fair next week, was a guest.

CONTROL AT STAKE OF COMMITTEE

(By John M. Hightower)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18—(AP)—Administration control of the strategic house rules committee is at stake in President Roosevelt's fight to unseat Rep. John O'Connor of New York.

If O'Connor is renominated and reelected, domination of this committee — which determines the legislation to come before the house — may pass into the hands of anti-administration congressmen.

O'Connor is chairman. Nine other Democrats and four Republicans are members. Four of the Democrats—Sabath of Illinois, Greenwood of Indiana, Harlan of Ohio and Lewis of Colorado — generally are considered Roosevelt supporters.

Four others — Cox of Georgia, Smith of Virginia, Clark of North Carolina and Dies of Texas — bucked the president on the wage hour bill. Some of them also have opposed various other administration measures.

The other Democratic member, Driver of Arkansas, already has been eliminated from the picture. He lost his race for renomination to E. C. Gathings, after a campaign which politicians here said was lacking in issues of national importance.

Driver opposed the wage-hour bill. Assuming the number of Democratic committeemen remains the same in the next session, his defeat will give the administration leadership in the house an opportunity to put a New Deal supporter into his place.

SALES TAX MILLS SHORTAGE IN THE STATE IS ENDED

Sedalia Merchants Turn In Old Ones Or A Surplus For Money

Mills, not counted but weighed, were turned over to R. E. Copher with the state department, Jefferson City by Sedalia merchants.

Mr. Copher was at the Chamber of Commerce office Thursday to receive a surplus of mills the merchants had on hand, and would pay them for same.

Yesterday afternoon he had paid out $133, $60 for metal mills, and $73 for the old type paper ones. That would have been 133,000 mills had they all been one mill type, but there were both five's and one's. He expected to receive many more during the afternoon.

Mr. Copher brought his own scales and machine for stacking the tokens. The manufacturer's weight is accepted by the state officials and much time is saved by just weighing the metal pieces, and taking the word of the manufacturer for how many there are per ounce.

Shortage Ended

JEFFERSON CITY, Aug. 18.—Missouri's "mill" shortage ended today with receipt by State Auditor Forrest Smith of 10 million metal one-mill sales tax tokens.

For nearly two months, Smith said, the state had been unable to meet requests for the tokens. Today's shipment, however, should last the remainder of the year, he estimated.

The state has now purchased a total of 40-million one-mill tokens and 12½ million five-mill tokens, Smith said, paying $2.22 a thousand.

SCHOOLS TO OPEN HERE SEPTEMBER 6

The schools of Sedalia, both public and parochial, will reopen Tuesday morning, September 6.

On that day there will be registration and assignment of classes, then the boys and girls will be dismissed to arrange for their books and supplies, and be ready for classes on Wednesday.

WITNESS STATES POLICY RACKET MADE 'AIR TIGHT'

Testifies At Hines Trial That Schultz Took Over Control

OBJECTIONS OF DEFENSE OFTEN

Prosecutor Dewey At New York Charges Accused Shared Profits

By JOHN FERRIS

NEW YORK, Aug. 18—(AP)—Wilfred Brunder, 43, West Indies negro, once operator of a $1,000,000-a-year Harlem policy bank, testified in supreme court today that when he came out of prison in 1932 he learned Dutch Schultz had taken over control of the lucrative game and made it an "air tight" racket.

On the stand as a witness in the trial of James J. (Jimmy) Hines, Tammany district leader, on charges of conspiracy in connection with the policy syndicate, Brunder said another Harlem policy syndicate, Brunder said another Harlem policy banker, Joe "Spasm" Ison, told him that Schultz had squeezed out small individual operators.

"Schultz has got a cold monopoly," Brunder quoted Ison as telling him.

As Brunder began his testimony, Defense Attorney Lloyd Paul Stryker interrupted with frequent objections.

Leaping to his feet, the tall defense counsel called loudly:

"I object to it as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial . . . not germane to the issue . . . hearsay . . . no foundation laid. . . . not in the presence of the defendant. . . . No foundation to establish that it was in furtherance of any matter which might in any wise render it admissible."

When he had finished, out of breath, Justice Ferdinand Pecora said dryly:

"Objection overruled."

"Exception," scowled Stryker. And the testimony went on.

Testimony Interrupted

A policy or numbers "banker" in Harlem for seven years, Wilfred Brunder had begun a detailed description of the lottery yesterday when his testimony was interrupted by a defense demand that some connection be shown between Hines and the racket he is charged with aiding.

Though protesting, District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey promptly produced a confessed henchman of Schultz — rangy, broad-shouldered George Weinberg, who was indicted with Hines but turned state's evidence—to "put the finger" on the Tammany boss.

Halted at every other sentence by defense objections, Weinberg testified Hines attended a 1932 conference at which arrangements were made to protect the numbers racket from too much official interference.

The grizzled Tammany boss received a $1,000 retainer from Schultz at the racket boss' apartment, the witness added, and Schultz ordered Weinberg to give Hines $500 to $1,000 a week.

"I was told by Schultz to make my arrangements to get in touch with Hines whenever I needed him," Weinberg said, explaining he had told Hines that Schultz and his associates wanted policy cases settled in magistrates' court and not "downtown in special sessions," and that police raids should be curbed.

"Hines went on the payroll and promised to deliver," Dewey had told the jury in his opening statement, as he sketched the growth of the racket in which, a 13-count indictment charges, Hines shared control and profits.

Defense Counsel Incensed

Already incensed by Dewey's charges, which he told the jury were based on "diabolical falsehoods" and "the rankest perjury," Hines' chief counsel, Lloyd Paul Stryker, first demanded a mistrial because of Weinberg's testimony.

Denied his motion by Justice Ferdinand Pecora, Stryker arose to confront Weinberg. His voice sharp and indignant, he first prompted the witness to admit that everyone at the alleged 1932 conference, except him and Hines were dead.

Then, confronting Weinberg testimony from a federal court trial in which he denied having business relations with Dutch Schultz, Stryker made the uneasy racketeer admit he had lied in that trial—lied to save $24,000, Weinberg added.

"Would you lie to save your liberty?" Stryker demanded.

"I don't know whether I would or not," Weinberg answered.

"That is all," Stryker told the court.

O'CONNOR ASKS FOR SHOWDOWN WITH PRESIDENT

Urges Nation To Back Him In His Fight Administration

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—(AP)—Representative John J. O'Connor (D.-N.Y.), asserting "The President's attack on me and other members of congress is an escalator to a dictatorship," asked the nation to back him tonight in his fight on the Roosevelt administration.

"Let's have it out," he said in an address prepared for delivery over a radio network (CBS).

"If the people of the United States desire to extend an invitation to dictatorship, we should know about it just as speedily as possible.

"If the 'purge' is going to work in America, the sooner we know it, the better. I, for one, have no hesitancy in snatching up the gage which the President has thrown down."

O'Connor, placed by the president on the administration's "purge" list, said the issue was 'which shall it be—Democracy or monocracy?"

He said the President had read at his press conference in New York newspaper editorial containing "a brief, but viciously untrue reference to me," and had added, "You can interpret that as coming from me."

"Nearly every man in public life x x x has been insulted by that newspaper. But it is quite different," said O'Connor, " to be insulted by the President of the United States. One naturally feels it very keenly and naturally is at a disadvantage to reply in kind. x x x

Sees His Duty

"I would be derelict, however, in my duty as a representative elected by the people and as an American citizen, if I did not express myself as to what I believe to be the issue now definitely raised in this country.

"Will the "purge" work in America?"

O'Connor said "If we are to revert to a one-man government, the people should be made conscious of the issue at once. x x x if they submit to the change, they should do it with their eyes open."

On Purge List

The veteran representative of Manhattan's 16th congressional district said his opposition to the President's reorganization bill was "the one unabsolvable 'sin' which has placed me high on the 'purge list.' "

"Other names are inscribed on that roll of ex-communicants," he added, "because they honestly feared there was a desire on the part of the executive to control the court branch of our government.

'Some of us, still unchastened, still maintaining the same views, feel that the indictment may yet constitute an 'honor roll.'

"The independence of thought and action by our representatives has never heretofore been challenged," O'Connor continued. x x x

LOYALISTS-REBELS IN SNEAK MEET HINTED

ZURICH, Switzerland, Aug. 18.—(AP)—Simultaneous appearance in Zurich today of the premier of government Spain and the Spanish Insurgent representative in London inspired reports the two had met as representatives of the warring Spanish factions.

Swiss sources were inclined to discount a statement by Dr. Juan Negrin, Spanish government premier, he came to Zurich only to attend the international congress of physiologists.

It was pointed out he had left his hotel at the hour of the congress banquet, but failed to appear there.

Associates of the Duke of Alba, Insurgent representative in London, declined to disclose why he was in Zurich. He and Negrin had suites at different hotels, both of which were guarded.

Attendants at Negrin's suite explained his evening absence by saying he had gone to confer with congress delegates.

The Spanish government premier arrived in Zurich this morning, accompanied by two other Spanish doctors, one of whom was Farael Mendes, secretary of state for interior in the premier's cabinet.

At the congress banquet in the evening, Fabra Negris, Spanish minister to Switzerland, made a speech in Negrin's name, thanking Switzerland for 'aid to the women and children of Spain."

FAIR GROUNDS IS BUSY SPOT BEFORE 1938 EXPOSITION

Judging of Babies In Health Contest Starts This Morning

INDICATIONS FOR RECORD CROWDS

Humorist To Be At Dinner To Be Tendered Press Saturday

The state fair grounds is humming with activity as the opening day near. There are so many people engaged in preparations for the Sedalia's show that it almost represents a real fair day.

The judging of the babies and older children in the Blue Ribbon and Nine Point health contest began Thursday morning in the women's building, under supervision of doctors and nurses of the state health. The champions will be announced and awards made on Wednesday, which is governor's day.

Captain F. F. Frakes, who will be featured in the thrill program Saturday afternoon, is making plans today for the construction of the wooden house he is to crash. His plane, piloted by Marvin Northrop, a world war ace, landed Thursday afternoon at the Webber airport, Northrop flying here from Ionia, Mich.

Humorist Be At Dinner

Arthur F. Killick, better known as "Fatty Lewis," known for his feature stories and radio skits, has accepted an invitation to attend the annual press dinner on Saturday at noon, in the administration building. Killick is now engaged in promoting Kansas City's Jubilesta.

There will be two broadcasts daily from the fair grounds, one by WHB, Kansas City, the other by KFEQ, St. Joseph.

Loud speaking equipment is being installed today. There will be fourteen loud speakers on the grounds, some in the most remote parts, and five microphones on the studio stage will make it possible for the programs being presented there to be heard all over the grounds.

Tents are ready in White City for those who want to camp while here. Charles W. Green, secretary of the fair, said that he had received more inquiries for information on White City this year than he received altogether the past five years. This certainly indicates many are planning to come to the fair and enjoy an outdoor vacation at the same time.

CRAZED FATHER IS SHOT BY HIS SON

Farmer Attacks His Wife With a Hammer

TIPTON, Ia., Aug. 18.—(AP)—A 16-year-old farm youth shot his father through the chest today after the father "ran amuck" and attacked the boy's mother with a claw hammer, fracturing her skull, County Attorney R. A. Potter reported.

Potter said H. E. Wood, 49, the father, signed a statement that he went to the machine shed on the farm intending to hang himself, but changed his mind, picked up the hammer and attacked his wife in the pantry of their residence.

The mother was taken to a Cedar Rapids, Ia., hospital by the son, Luverne and his sister, Bonnie, about 23, who was at home at the time.

The father was taken to an Iowa City, Ia., hospital where attendants reported he was in a serious condition.

The boy fired two shots with a .38 caliber revolver, one of them splintering the hammer handle in the father's hand and the other piercing his chest, Potter said.

The attorney said Luverne, a high school student, was not taken into custody.

JAPAN'S ARMIES RACE A RIVER OF OF GOLD

One way to get an idea whether Japan will finally whip China is to follow the troop movements as reported in the daily papers. Another way is to keep an eye on the gold movement.

Armies move to the accompaniment of crashing guns, and go to the field of action with a certain amount of fanfare and drum-beating, even in this day of mechanized fighting. Gold moves quietly, like a thief in the night, and only a few people bother to trace its course as recorded on the financial pages. But in the end it can be the more important of the two.

* * *

Not long ago John T. Flynn noted the heavy drain of gold Japan has been suffering recently, and pointed out that in 15 months the country had been obliged to send $346,000,000 of gold to the United States. A little later a New York Times writer remarked that the figure had risen to $352,000,000.

These figures can mean but one thing: that Japan is going broke at a rapid pace. The best estimates have it that her gold reserve now is no higher than $261,000,000. Her foreign markets are steadily dwindling; meanwhile the tremendously expensive war in Chnia forces her to keep on buying goods abroad—cotton, oil, iron, munitions, and so on. She can no longer pay for these goods with her own exports. The gold supply with which she can pay is fast vanishing.

Which means, obviously, that Japan's fate rests on the outcome of a race between her armies and her gold supply. If the armies can win a complete and final victory before bankruptcy arrives, well and good; if they cannot, Japan faces utter ruin.

* * *

All of this, of course, is Japan's worry, not ours—except that it emphasizes an important little fact which we sometimes forget.

Despite all of the thimble-rigging and phenagling which most great governments have indulged in, in the field of economics, it does seem to be true that there are a few fundamental economic laws that in the long run have got to be obeyed. The oldest, simplest, and most-often-forgotten of them all would seem to be, simply, that if you spend beyond your income, and keep on doing it long enough, you wind up in a disaster.

There are all kinds of expedients by which the evil day can be postponed, of course. Some of them work beautifully—for a time. But the reckoning has to be paid sooner or later.

ADVANCE MAN

Some publicity firm's idea-man has succeeded in having the official flag of New York's World Fair planted on the icy wastes of Ellesmereland, in the Arctic, and how does that make you feel?

It won't be long before the only place a man can go to get away from it all will be up—straight up, near the ceiling of the stratosphere some place. UNLESS, friends, you do a little co-operative seizing of the bull by the horns right away.

These are times when man seems to be occupied almost exclusively with trying to repair damage that has already been done. The Arctic is practically the only place left where you can start from scratch. And what crusade could be more satisfactory than the preservation of the solitude of man's last refuge from civilization's hurly-burly?

Planting an advertisement for the World's Fair is only the first step. Unless something's done, it'll only be a matter of time of a few short years before the place is cluttered with illuminated billboards, roving sound trucks, girls in bathing suits posing with vacuum cleaners, and pink and green dodgers advertising necktie sales.

ONE UNION, DIVISIBLE BY ITS FRIENDS

The man who remarked that he could take care of his enemies if someone would just protect him from his friends might well have been a member of a labor union, 1938 model. For labor is having its biggest trouble right now with its own chosen leaders.

The split between the American Federation of Labor and the Committee For Industrial Organization is, of course, the most obvious example. Even more damaging, however, in some respects, is the row which is currently tearing the United Auto Workers apart.

This appears to be a civil war in the high command. One group accuses the other of being Communist-dominated and inspired; that group retorts that the opposition is led by "Lovestoneites," an offshoot faction of the original Communist party which is in sworn opposition to Stalinist leadership.

Charges and counter-charges are hurled freely, and the rival leaders busily seek support in the rank and file pending a possible general convention.

* * *

All of this may be stimulating and invigorating to the leaders involved, but it can't be very welcome news to the ordinary workers.

A labor union is first and last a collective bargaining agency for its members. It is the instrument through which they deal with their employer on something like the basis of equality which prevailed in the small, man-to-man dealings of the shops of a century ago.

But a leadership which is split wide open over doctrinal disputes about which the rank and file cares little is hardly in shape to bargain efficiently. In this particular instance, it is demonstrating that the "red scare" which has been raised in connection with the auto union in the past has a substantial basis in fact; further, it is practically inviting any employer who is so minded to drive as hard a bargain as he cares to drive.

* * *

Labor has made tremendous advances in the last few years. These have come largely because people have at last realized that everybody gets along better when peaceful, orderly bargaining exists—bargaining in which both sides recognize their responsibilities not only to those whom they directly represent but to society as a whole. For America, after all, is still sold on the idea that capital and labor are traveling in the same direction and will get there faster by cooperating than by quarreling.

That is why this auto union squabble is so distressing. It helps no one; it hurts most of all the people whom the squabblers are supposed to represent.

BRAINS IN THE BOOTH

Probably every voter has had an experience like this:

Entering his polling place, he finds a half dozen flustered people seated around a table, helplessly shuffling the ballots and books, wondering what blank goes where, who signs what book, whether the ballots are really in order, and in general pretty well lost in the midst of what is, after all, a quite simple procedure.

The reason is that among election officials there are always a good many who are incompetent, ignorant and careless, and who have received the job merely as a minor political plum.

Election-day jobs are temporary and trivial, in a sense, and there is no reason to expect that they will always be filled by the $25,000-a-year executives. Yet something can be done to assure a minimum competency in the voting booth. Something is being done—in Milwaukee.

Milwaukee subjects election officials to civil service examination. The results of two years of such operation have been reported to the Civil Service Assembly. In that time, 4,763 persons took the tests, which included simple arithmetic, checking poll lists, tallying and election procedure.

Of 1,979 persons examined during 1936-37, who had previously served as election officials, 648 failed to pass even such simple tests.

Which throws light at once on both a problem and its solution.

If Communists are fighting Fascists, there is no right side.—Douglas Corrigan, on the war in Spain.

Tradition makes us live by precedent, rather than by principle or reason.—Rev. Dr. Paul S. Leinbach of Philadelphia.

Hitler is strongly for peace. It's up to the rest of Europe to give up pin-pricks against Germany.—General Sir Ian Hamilton, speaking in London.

Sixty-four People in Eighteen Families at Osage Farms

Sixty-four people, members of eighteen families, are living on 1884 acres of land near Hughesville, controlled by the Bois d' Arc Corporation, and pioneering in an unusual modern project in agriculture, living together as close neighbors, working cooperatively and sharing the profits. It is one of two groups of farms, both in the Hughesville district, built and sponsored by the Farm Security Administration, together known as the Osage Farms.

The organization is incorporated under the laws of Missouri, they hold quarterly membership meetings, and have a board of five directors who answer for the welfare of the farm. Its officers are, president, W. T. Harper; J. F. Rutherford, Harold Withers, Charles E. Singer and Jerry Vardeman, members.

Henry J. Clausius, who comes to this county from Moniteau county, and has had experience as a bookkeeper and business man, is treasurer, and also looks after the poultry interests on the place. E. M. Copeland, secretary and manager, formerly lived in Shannon county. The dairy herdsman is V. C. Sears, who with Mr. Copeland are the government's representatives on the place. James A. Muster, who resides in Sedalia is in charge of the combined farm groups, or the Osage Farms as a whole.

The farm is well stocked, and equipment for farming is supplied. There are at the present time 3500 pullets; 46 dairy cows; 143 beef calves; 63 gilts, 445 pigs; 16 mares; 1 team of mules, 1 saddle horse; 1 Percheron stallion; 4 horse colts; 1 mule colt; 325 acres of corn; 150 acres in roasting ears, and early and good yielding corn; One Hundred Day and Midland Yellow Dent; 175 acres of oats for use as feed, and lespedeza planted in the oats; 100 acres Atlas sargo for silage purposes; 90 acres of soy beans for hay. It was too late for wheat to be planted, but there will be a large acreage of wheat and barley this fall. There is no plan at the present to sell any of the crops, but to use some for seed. Certified seeds are used chiefly, and it is planned later to market the seed crop, then buy back what they want for their own feed. The dairy and beef cows are white faced cattle, purchased in Texas by Copeland.

Chicken Production

Rather unusual is the fact that some of the chickens on the place have been laying four months from the time they were purchased.

They were bought May the first and they received their first egg August 1. Five to six months is the normal laying time for chickens, and while the usual weight at the age of four months is about two pounds, these chickens are averaging 3 1 4 to 3 1-2 pounds. There are four chickens houses on the farm, with a capacity of 2500 layers. These houses are specially designed to keep the chickens from becoming contaminated, and because of the structure chickens are less apt to communicate disease one from another. The floors are of wire netting, nailed to upright two by fours, and so designed that sections may be removed and ground beneath, cleaned. The two by fours afford a roost for the chickens at night.

The fowls are the English White Leghorn breed, said to be the most economical producers. August 5th 2000 roosters were taken from the flock and sold, leaving only young pullets on the farm. Mr. Clausius, gives credit for the early growth and production of these chickens to the proper convenient placing of feed and water, which set side by side so that the chicken may eat and have its water to wash down its food. Water troughs and feed bins are filled twice daily. Each chicken house is equipped with electric lights and running water and are of entirely modern design.

The families living on the farm were selected, first because they were financially "down and out" and in need of a means of livlihood, but character and adaptability to fit into the program were factors taken into consideration. The homesteaders are being financed in the purchase of necessary livestock and equipment, and are being supplied operating funds under the usual rehabilitation loans of the FSA, which bear five per cent interest and run five to ten years.

The corporation pays each man fifteen cents an hour for the number of hours worked as an advance against the annual dividend. The dividens will be paid in stock which cannot be cashed for five years, less the advance.

W. P. A. WORKERS HELP IN EXHIBITS FOR MISSOURI STATE FAIR AND BIG EXPOSITIONS

The Missouri Works Progress Administration has provided labor for one of the most interesting features of the 1938 State Fair, to be held here August 20 27. That feature is an outdoor display, called "Roadside Romance," showing the living conditions and handicrafts in pioneer Missouri and in some parts of the Ozark region today.

Many of the items in the display will be included in the Missouri exhibits at the New York World's Fair and the San Francisco International Exposition next year, according to F. W. Sayers, state highway department engineer, who is in charge of the exhibits.

WPA workers are employed on the two big fair exhibits as well as the "Roadside Romance" display. Between sixty and seventy of them are at work in the Missouri Building on the State Fair grounds preparing the materials for shipment to New York and San Francisco next winter. Ten carloads will go to the latter city and about fifteen to the former, Mr. Sayers says. The WPA workers will continue on the job during the State Fair.

The New York and San Francisco exhibits will, naturally emphasize the present-day resources of Missouri. The "Roadside Romances" collection, which is located on the highway department's section of the State Fair grounds, consists chiefly of items of historical interest. They reveal that the existence of our pioneer forefathers is more pleasant to read about than to experience.

The display contains a Taney County log cabin with a stone fireplace and hand-hewn, oak shingles; a fast-turning waterwheel from a 104-year-old grain and saw mill in Reynolds county, a split rail fence from Cole county; a yard fence of home-made pickets; an old cider press; a horse-operated sorghum press; a sorghum drying pan; a wrought-iron breaking plow; a sturdy breaking sulky; a worn buckboard wagon body; a yoke for oxen; a well top; a chicken coop; two beehives; a primitive sawbuck and chopping block; a tiff mine windlass, bucket, ladder and tools; a pile of tiff ore; Ozark pottery; cedar trinkets and souvenirs.

Interesting Histories

Many of these articles have interesting histories. They are not replicas. All were brought from places where, at some time, they were in actual use.

State Administrator Matthew S. Murray last spring approved three Works Progress Administration projects to assist the state commission appointed to prepare Missouri's New York and San Francisco exhibits. Since April, WPA workers have been collecting native trees, plants, minerals, rocks, animals, birds, fish and historical data in thirty counties and sending them to Sedalia.

They are paid by the Works Progress Administration.

"This assistance is of great benefit to the exhibits commission," Mr. Sayers said this week. "The members of the WPA projects have worked hard and are still at it. Without them, the work which they have done and will do in the future would necessarily be paid for out of the exhibits commission's appropriation. The money saved through WPA cooperation will be used to improve the quality of the state's showing at the New York World's Fair and the San Francisco International Exposition."

FUNERAL OF YOUTH DYING IN CHURCH

The funeral services for Lawrence Olson, "demon possessed" who died at the Full Gospel church, Fifth street and Hancock avenue, in Sedalia Tuesday afternoon after collapsing before the altar while receiving prayers to have "evil spirits" removed from his body, were conducted by Reverend C. B. Swanson, of the Full Gospel church, at 10 o'clock Friday morning at the Mt. Zion church, south of Warrensburg.

More than 250 members of the Full Gospel church in Warrensburg and Sedalia crowded into the church to pray for the youth.

Reverend Swanson used a revival service and his subject was "Belief and Salvation Through Prayer." He was assisted by Mrs. Ethel Smith, a follower of the Full Gospel religion.

The boy, a mute since birth, had sought aid through Reverend Swanson, in the Full Gospel church in Sedalia, and attended regularly the past several days prayers which were offered for him.

He became violent about 1 o'clock Tuesday afternoon and it was necessary for six men to hold him until he collapsed. Although the boy had been reported to have been an epileptic, it was declared by his parents he was not such, but was a robust boy who was afflicted with "evil spirits."

Pall bearers for the boy were friends and neighbors of the family, Clarence Marr, Lon Marker, Lawson Lockard, Vaughn Smith, Delmar Van Blarcum and Mannie Olson.

Interment was in the Mt. Zion church cemetery.

REFRESHMENTS SERVED AT OPEN AIR SERVICES

HOPKINS, Mo., Aug. 13.—(AP)—To stimulate attendance on hot Sunday evenings in July and August, the Rev. Paul Barton of the Methodist church here has been conducting services from the parsonage porch.

His daughter, Evangeline, plays the piano just inside the living room opening on the porch. The congregation sits in folding chairs on the porch and in automobiles parked on the terrace in front of the house.

At the close of the service, the pastor serves a cold drink, iced tea or lemonade, and wafers to all who attend.

TWO-FOOT SNOW FALL IN A VILLAGE IN ENGLAND

LONDON, Aug. 13.—(AP)—The little village of Wold Newton counted up a small fortune brough by a two-foot snowfall today while the rest of Britain surveyed its loss from two days of freak storms.

Visitors flocked to the hamlet, near Bridlington in Yorkshire, in busses which solicited business with such provocative signs as: "Your chance to say you've seen snow in August."

104 Years Old

Rosie Johnson, who lives at 2013 South Ohio avenue, is probably Sedalia's oldest resident. She was born in Cooper county, December 27, 1834, near Boonville, and was a slave owned by the Dr. Ellis family.

Lying in bed at her home the aged colored woman smiles at visitors, answers questions, but seems too weary and exhausted to to care much for conversation. The day the reporter visited her was exceptionally hot, and the heat probably added to her exhaustion.

"Let me help you sit up so you can have your picture taken, Granny," said her granddaughter, Elsie Poindexter, who handles her with a loving touch. "All right," said the aged woman, smiling, and she almost pulled herself up.

"Granny came to Sedalia when she was young," said the granddaughter. "She has often told us about how their home burned in Cooper county and they came over here with a few belonging. At that time, she said, there were just a few building scattered around down on Main street. She used to tell us about the war," said the granddaughter, "especially about the first skirmishes."

In the house with Granny Johnson was a six weeks old baby, Howard Ray Houston, daughter of Louise Foster Houston. The latter is a niece of Elsie Poindexter, and Elsie's mother, with whom the aged woman lives, and who is her daughter, is Eliza Dotson.

FARMER HAS NO WHEAT—HE WILL HAVE LESS IN 1939

GREELEY, Colo., Aug. 13.—Paul Emery, farmer, believes the Greeley AAA office has set itself a difficult problem in figuring out his 19'9 wheat allotment.

He said he received this letter from the office:

"Mr. Wheat Grower: From information on file in this office it appears that the average planting of wheat on your farm x x x is 0 acres. This figure will be your allotted wheat acres for 1938. Your 1939 wheat allotment will be slightly below the above figure."

Mr. and Mrs. Evans were taken to a hospital in Warrensburg, where Mr. Evans' arm was amputated

AWARDS MADE IN EXHIBIT BY THE CAMERA CLUB

Second Annual Salon Is Opened At Sedalia Public Library

Covering a complete range of subjects from baby portraits and animal studies to landscapes and architecture, the second annual salon of the Sedalia Camera Club was opened to the public Saturday morning in the Sedalia Public Library. This exhibit which features work done by members of the club and others during the past year contains fifty-two enlargements from the favorite negatives of the exhibitors. Those who saw the display last year will be impressed with the finer quality and better execution of the pictures shown this year.

Awards are Made

Prizes won, and the subjects covered by the exhibitors were as follows; First, "Sambo" by Charles Fritz, a picture of a negro boy evidently in the best of humor. This picture demonstrates the possibility of handling successfully a very difficult subject. Second, "Crown of Light" by Meredith Bruce, and extremely difficulty cloud shots, made with the sun just setting. In this picture the photographer has captured the elusive rays of light so often seen in the combination of setting sun and drifting clouds, but seldom caught by the camera. Third, "Union Station" by Eugene Strelow, a beautiful interior shot of the Union depot in Kansas City, showing travelers hurrying to and from trains with shafts of sunlight entering through the windows. Fourth, "Explorer" by John Joe McGrath, an aptly titled baby picture showing a little tot too small to walk, but still obsessed with the thought of going some place, and using the only means of locomotion possible to its tender years. Fifth, "Three of a Kind" by Don Middleton, an outdoor study of a mother goat and three kids.

The prizes were awarded by a committee composed of Dr. F. W. Carter, L. P. Andrews Jr., and Larry A. Brill. The public is being urged to vote for this own choice for the three first places also, in order to determine the popular feeling for the subjects shown, and the method of handling. The display is in the west room of the public library and will only be on exhibit through Sunday, as some of the pictures are entered at the State Fair, and have to be at the Fair Grounds on or before Wednesday.

Mormons are about 75 per cent of the church membership of the state of Utah.

There was much rejoicing in town among the most of the citizens on last Tuesday evening when it was announced that at the special election held on that day the vote for the school bonds carried by a vote of more than 2-3 majority. This insures the Lincoln school district an up-to-date building when the addition is built, which will house two class rooms and a gymnasium. This is an improvement that had to be made in order that the school should stay on the approved list, and since a PWA grant of 45 per cent of the cost was offered the district, it will be built at much less cost than if the matter was taken up at a later date. All local labor that it is possible to use, will be employed on the project.

H. C. M'CARTHY ONE OF 12 FIRED IN NLRB 'PURGE'

Discharge Linked With Complaint Filed In Springfield Case

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Aug. 13.—Hugh C. McCarthy, national labor relations board examiner, told the Springfield Leader and Press by telephone from Washington today that he was one of 12 examiners who had been discharged in an NLRB "purge"

The board's stated reason for discharge, McCarthy said, is that the examiners are "no longer needed because there are no cases to be heard." However, seven new examiners have been hired by the board, he said.

Action Follows Complaint

McCarthy said his discharge followed a complaint filed with the board by Bernard L. Alpert, NLRB attorney who represented the Meatcutters' Union in charges that the Producers' Produce Company in Springfield refused to bargain collectively with the union and discharged two employes for union activities.

It was the second complaint filed against the examiner, he admitted, the first arising from an Estherville, Iowa, case, in which the Gamble-Ribx Robinson Company, fruit distributors, faced charges similar to those in the Producers case.

In that hearing, McCarthy said, he stopped a board attorney from "badgering" a witness in a manner "shocking to one's sense of decency and fair dealing."

Claud Hawley, president of the Springfield Central Labor Union, said he believed union men had complained to the board and to American Federation of Labor President William Green that McCarthy had refused to admit "important" evidence for the union in the Producers' case.

ALLOTMENT OF $169,615 MADE TO COUNTY SCHOOLS

First Apportionment To 1938-'39 Terms In State $5,488,673

LARGER AMOUNTS NEXT MARCH 15

Meets For First Time Program Outlined In 1931 School Laws

JEFFERSON CITY, Aug. 16—Payments of $5,488,673 were made to Missouri school districts by the department of education today as the first allotment of state funds for the 1938-39 school year.

A second, larger allotment will be made next March 15. Today's payment represented 39.65 per cent of the total apportionment of $13,821,129 made for the school year.

Lloyd W. King, superintendent of schools, said the 1938-39 apportionment met for the first time the minimum educational program outlined in the 1931 school laws, passed in an effort to equalize school opportunities throughout the state.

The apportionment is based on a formula which takes into account the lower resources of the backward rural areas.

King also said he believed the March payment would be large enough to enable the grants to reach 100 per cent of the apportionment for the first time. He estimated the March allotment at about $8,300,000.

Last year the payments were 95.4 per cent of the apportionment. The August, 1937, grants totaled $5,064,291.

Of the payments made today, $1,548,117 went to rural schools and $3,847,611 to high schools. The remainder was divided as follows: Defectives $41,205; orphans $31,474; building aid $13,481; and opportunity rooms $6,780.

One-third of the state's general revenue is allotted by law to the schools. The funds for the annual apportionment have been much larger in recent years because of the sales tax, which has been hiked until it stands at 2 per cent.

The August payments and the total 1938-39 apportionments respectively included by counties:

Boone $60,775, $153,275; Buchanan $78,723, $198,539; Butler $67,433, $170,065; Cape Girardeau $58,932, $148,753; Cole $39,470, $99,433; Greene $134,281, $338,654; Grundy $32,645, $82,330; Jackson $251,906 ($158,602 to Kansas City) $633,376; Jasper, $137,822, $347,583; Livingston, $35,102, $88,527; Marion $46,576, $117,464; Nodaway $46,140, $116,365; Pettis $48,159, $121,456; Randolph $37,349, $94,194; St. Louis City $264,687, $667,533; St. Louis County $195,288, $491,020; and Vernon $48,702, $122,827.

LIBERAL RAINFALL BE BENEFICIAL TO CORN CROP

Precipitation of 1.26 of Inch In Sedalia—Lighter Elswhere

A total rainfall of 1.26 inches in Sedalia, .78 of which was general over the county, and a considerable drop in temperature was most welcome to the farmers of the county, and will prove most beneficial to the corn in particularly.

Sedalia had a rain of .48 inches Monday afternoon, but so far as could be learned it did not go beyond the viaduct east, Muddy creek on the west, did not touch Georgetown, Ionia, or many other of the outlying communities.

after midnight was general over the county, according to reports in Sedalia this morning, and even as helpful as the rain was the cooler weather.

Corn, which was beginning to burn, is looking better and the rain was sufficient in many places to permit plowing.

A general rain, such as that of this morning, is usually followed by other rains this time of the year, one optimist stated this morning, and if that happens the farmers of Pettis county are going to have an exceptionally fine corn crop.

POULTRY PRIZE WON BY COOK

His Hens Average Over 15.9 Eggs Each to Take Honors Again

For the third consecutive month, a flock of White Leghorns owned by F. H. Cook, Beaman, Route 2, has been the high producing flock among the ten Pettis county poultry cooperators. During the month of July, the average production per hen was 15.9 eggs.

The second high flock for the month of July was also White Leghorns owned by C. S. Arnold, Hughesville, with a production record of 15.6 eggs per hen.

A mixed flock of White Leghorns and White Rocks owned by C. E. Carroll of La Monte with a production of 15.5 eggs per hen was the third high flock.

E. B. Winner, assistant county agent called the attention of these cooperators as well as other poultrymen in the county to the fact that a substantial net income from the poultry flock depends largely upon securing a high egg production from the pullet flock during the fall and winter months.

On farms where the pullets were hatched early and a few are beginning to lay, the house should be thoroughly cleaned, disinfected with lye water, and the pullets moved to these permanent quarters. Later hatched pullets should be housed by September 30.

As the pullets start laying, the grow mash should be gradually changed to the lay mash.

A house should be well lighted and ventilated to provide maximum comfort for the pullets. Under such conditions, there is no need to allow the pullets to range. It is easier to get them to consume libarel quantities of mash and grain when they are confined and they will not be disturbed after they start laying. Often pullets are allowed to range about the old poultry yards during the fall and become heavily infested with worms and may come in contact with infectious disease germs.

With generally increased amounts of green feed available during the fall season, many fail to house the pullets thinking that more green feed will reduce feed costs. While green feed is palatable and nutritious, it is not a substitute for liberal feeding to get the pullets bodies heavily covered with muscle and fat before heavy laying starts. Delaying housing likewise delays production.

The pullet flock should always be housed separately from the old birds. This may be either done by having separate houses or by the use of a wire partition in one house.

It is important that the pullets be free from lice and worms before they are housed. If they are found, treatments should be given immediately.

COUNCIL SESSION STORMY ONE IN HOT ARGUMENTS

L. C. Bryson In Discussion Threatens To Strike Barman

RIFT OVER PICTURE OF BOY BEATEN

Adjournment Called For When Personalties Injected In Meeting

An anticipated uneventful city council meeting Monday night, with only routine business to transact, developed into a heated discussion between members of the city council, the Civic Labor council, and a disinterested attendant at the council session. When Mayor Bagby felt that everyone who wanted to had been permitted to express themselves, and personalities were being brought into the affair, he entertained a motion to adjourn. It was made and carried, all concerned leaving the city hall with apparently no hard feelings on either side.

Starts With Showing Pictures

It all started when Dick Keenan, of the Labor Civic Council, asked permission to take the floor, show some pictures to the council members, and then ask for a discussion. The pictures, he said, were of Fred Cramer, who he said, had suffered a severe beating at the hands of two police officers when being questioned in police court on the night of June 5 or 6. He said he knew the council members had the same kind feelings towards their fellowmen that he had, and if they realized what this boy had undergone they would take further action.

H. S. Barman, second ward alderman, who was a member of the police committee replied to Mr. Keenan that the matter had all been taken up by the police committee, thoroughly investigated, the offending officers suspended, and after a letter had been received from Cramer's attorney, S. P. Harlan, signed by Cramer himself, asking that the officers be reinstated, and there had been other requests for the officers from reliable citizens who believed they had been sufficiently punished and there would be no reoccurrence of the affair, they were reinstated.

Doesn't Look at Pictures

Elmer Sumners, also a second ward alderman, throught there would be no harm in letting Keenan show the pictures and they were passed around.

Leroy Bryson, of the Civic Labor League, sitting just behind Barman, took the floor and declared that one councilman, stating he referred to Barman, did not even think enough of the matter to look at the picture, but just passed it on without even glancing at it.

"I didn't have to look at the picture,' said Barman, on his feet in a second. "I saw the boy's back before you ever saw the picture. We know all about this whole matter, went into it thoroughly, did what we thought best, and so far as I'm concerned its a closed incident. The people of Sedalia elected us to the council to look after their affairs, I for one am doing it to the best of my ability, and I'm not going to let any shopman, brotherhood man, or scab tell me what I have to do"

"I'll Pop You in the Nose"

"Don't you call me a scab," called Bryson, "or I'll pop you in the nose."

"Well now's the time to do it," was Barman's retort.

Just then A. J. Knipp, third ward alderman took the floor as the mayor rapped for order.

Mr. Knipp declared he was tired of the haphazard bulldozing of the group. asking by what authority they were there. "If you don't like the way we are managing the city's affairs, and I know we are all doing it as conscientiously as possible, why don't you get up your own ticket and give the people a chance to elect you. You gentlemen are entirely out of line. He called attention to the recent Missouri Pacific parade on Ohio avenue at which time the city officials cooperated in every way to make it a success.

Say Word "Scab" Unbecoming

Bryson objected to Mr. Knipp "trying to bawl him out," declaring that any citizen had a right to come to council meetings and express his opinions, whether they met with the approval of the council or not, insisted that the Cramer affair had not been properly settled, and again referred to the word scab stating it was unbecoming for any alderman to utter, or even think of.

Councilman Pinkepank, of the third ward, who had also been a member of the police committee at the time the Cramer affair was settled, explained the whole transaction, stating he hoped they would understand it had all been given consideration, and action taken as they thought best.

SUBSIDIES NEXT YEAR ON GRAIN TO BE INCREASED

Only Growers Within Allotments Can Obtain Them

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16—(AP)—Wheat, corn and rice growers will receive increased subsidies next year for compliance with federal acreage programs. Payments will be reduced, however, on some crops.

Federal farm officials announced the new subsidies last night.

Wheat farmers will be offered from 26 to 30 cents a bushel—compared with 12 cents this year—for reducing their 1939 planting by 31 per cent to keep within the 55,000,000 total wheat acreage allotted under the agriculture department's program.

Corn growers will be offered 13 to 16 cents a bushel, compared with 10 cents this year. The 1939 rice subsidy was placed between 20 and 25 cents a hundred pounds against 12.5 cents this year.

Federal farm officials said the 1939 cotton payments would be 3.6 to 4 cents a pound, compared with 5 cents this year; potato payments about 3 cents a bushel, against 3.6 to 5.4 this year, and tobacco payments probably the same as this year, from one-half to 1.53 cents a pound."

"Price Adjusting" Possible

Next year's subsidies for wheat, cotton, corn and rice and possibly some types of tobacco will include so-called "price adjustment" payments from the $212,000,000 appropriated at the last session of congress. Including this amount, officials said they expected funds totaling $712,000,000 to be available for the 1939 programs.

Only growers who keep within acreage allotments can obtain subsidies.

Although the wheat acreage is the only 1939 crop allotment goal fixed so far, officials said they expected next year's cotton allotment would approximate the 1938 acreage of 27,500,000 acres and that the corn acreage allotment would not differ greatly from the 42,000,000 goal set this year.

Exact acreage goals for corn, tobacco, rice and other commodities for which special allotments will be made can not be determined until the 1938 production is known more definitely, the officials added.

MIGHT SUBSIDIZE WHEAT EXPORTS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—A world wheat surplus is pushing Secretary Wallace toward some action which informed persons said today might develop into a proposal to subsidize wheat exports.

Wallace hinted at such an idea in an AAA talk last week and, it was said, has discussed it with a few associates and Secretary of State Hull.

Since wheat crops are generally large—wheat producing nations this year will have for sale about twice as much as buying countries need—Wallace views the situation as acute.

In the past Secretary Hull has opposed the theory of export subsidies, under which exporters would be permitted to sell abroad at prices low enough to meet foreign competition. The government would subsidize them to the extent of the difference between these prices and the higher domestic figure.

Hull has contended such sibsidies lead to foreign retaliation and thereby raise trade barriers.

COUNCIL MAKES ITS REPORT ON A SURVEY IN SOUTH

Problems There More Pressing Than In Other Parts of Country

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13—The national emergency council reported to President Roosevelt Friday that the south, more than any other section of the country, was ill-housed, ill-fed and ill-clad.

Summarizing the south's economic conditions at the President's request, for the information of congress and the country, the council said the region's population problems were the most pressing of any America must face. Declaring these problems were national, it concluded: "The south is the nation's greatest untapped market and the market in which American business can expand most easily. Northern producers and distributors are losing profits and northern workers are losing work because the south cannot afford to buy their goods."

Need For New Homes

One of the council's findings was that at least four million families, one-half of all the families, in the south, needed new homes.

Agriculture, industry, banking, labor, women and children all were described by the council as burdened by the economic ills peculiar to the area studied: Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Arkansas, Oklahoma and Texas.

The president, in asking for the report June 22, and in outlining it to the conference on economic conditions in the south July 5 said that it would be presented to congress.

The main points of the 60-page statement were:

The south, with a wealth of economic resources, is the poorest section of the country. With 28 per cent of the population of the country, it has only 16 per cent of tangible assets, including factories, machines, and the tools with which people make their living.

In the search for jobs, southerners in the prime of life leave the south in the greatest numbers, tending to make it a land of the very old and the very young.

The average income in the south in 1937 was $314 compared to $604 in the rest of the country.

The richest state in the south ranks lower in per capita income than the poorest state in other regions.

The assessed value of taxable property in the south in 1935 averaged only $463 per person, while in the northeastern states it averaged $1,370.

School Revenue Low

The south, with one-sixth of the nation's school revenues, educates one-third of the nation's children.

Endowments of all the colleges and universities of the south are less than the combined endowments of Harvard and Yale.

Four million southern families, representing one-half of the total in that region, should be rehoused. Houses in the rural south are the oldest, have the lowest value and the greatest need of repairs of any farm houses in the United States.

More than half the southern farmers depend on the cotton crop alone, and "the cotton market is a sheer gamble." The farming south depends on cotton and tobacco for two-thirds of its cash income.

Southern farmers purchase four-fifths of all the food they eat.

Lacking capital of its own, the south has been forced to borrow from outside financiers, and thus to relinquish control of much of its business and industry to investors from wealthier sections. A large proportion of the south's natural resources is owned by outside interests.

Freight differentials, which put southern industry at a disadvantage, no longer are justified.

The nation's high tariff policy has impeded the development of the south.

"Child labor," the report says, "is more common in the south than in any other section of the nation."

NEW CRISIS IN CZECH PROBLEM

Fighting In Chinese And Spanish Areas Continues Unabated

(By The Associated Press)

Conflict in Czechoslovakia between the government and the Nazi-supported Sudeten German minority came to a new crossroads today; in China, Japan gathered new power for her Yangtze river campaign and, in Spain, government and insurgent forces locked grips on two important fronts.

A foreign office official in Praha disclosed that a meeting had been arranged between Viscount Runciman, unofficial British mediator in the issue over the Sudeten Germans' demand for autonomy, and Konrad Henlein, leader of the Sudeten party.

It will be their first direct contact and it was understood Lord Runciman would plead that the Sudeten Germans take a less uncompromising attitude than that expressed yesterday in a manifesto proclaiming dissatisfaction with present procedures which "lead nowhere."

Commentators in London stressed that the Sudeten Germans had left an open door to new efforts to negotiate and said Lord Runciman's arrangement of a meeting with Henlein indicated the Briton might already have suggestions for a new basis for talks.

Bombard By Ships and Planes

Japanese warships and warplanes bombarded stubbornly-held Chinese positions on the south bank of the Yangtze river in redoubled efforts to break through to Hankow, China's provisional capital.

The Japanese relied on strong reinforcements to give new effectiveness to their campaign, which has been almost at a standstill since the Japanese occupied Kiukiang, 135 miles below Hankow, July 25.

Heavy fighting spread on the Estremadura front in southwestern Spain as Spanish government troops tried to drive insurgents from the foothold they had won in the mountain barrier to the Almaden mercury mining aera.

Insurgents said all government counterattacks failed but the government declared insurgent vanguards had been driven back across the Zujar river.

On the Ebro river front, in northeastern Spain, fighting centered in the Pandols mountains which control the Gandesa sector carved out by a government offensive almost a month old.

BORDER BRIDGE IS DEDICATED

Roosevelt Pleads For Development of Waterway At Ceremony

By WILLIAM B. ARDERY

THOUSAND ISLANDS BRIDGE, Canadian-U. S. Border, Aug. 18.—(AP)—President Roosevelt made a vigorous plea for the long-debated St. Lawrence waterway treaty today and said unless the United States and Canada take joint governmental action a "group of American interests" may gain a monopoly in developing the river.

Mr. Roosevelt spoke at dedication ceremonies for the winding bridge across the St. Lawrence connecting Ivy Lea, Ontario, and Collins Landing, N. Y.

The President, in his prepared address here, outlined the potentialities of navigation and power development in the boundary-line river and then added:

"The development of natural resources, and the proper handling of their fruits, is a major problem of government. Naturally, no solution would be acceptable to either country which did not leave its government entirely master in its own house.

"Put it bluntly, a group of American interests is here gradually putting itself into position where, unless caution is exercised, they may in time be able to determine the economic fate of a large area, both in Canada and the United States."

The President said he looked forward to the day "when a Canadian prime minister and an American President can meet to dedicate—not a bridge across this water—but the very water itself, to the lasting and productive use of their respective peoples."

Urges Deeper Channel

Mr. Roosevelt called attention to the fact that at present there is a 14-foot channel carrying water traffic from the Great Lakes through the St. Lawrence to the Atlantic. He continued:

"If this were deepened, which can easily be done, to 27 or 30 feet, every city on the Great Lakes now inland, would become an ocean port.

"The banks of the St. Lawrence valley would become one of the greatest gateways of the world and would benefit accordingly.

"Do we need to delay, and to deprive our peoples of the immediate employment and profit, or prevent our generation from reaping the harvest which is awaiting us?"

The President told his listeners that if they would scan records "with which my government is familiar" they would learn that all electric power developments along the St. Lawrence except the Ontario hydro are "called to, if not controlled by a single American group."

This control, he said, embraces "the usual surrounding penumbra of allies, affiliates, subsidiaries and satellites."

"In earlier stages of development of natural resources on this continent," Mr. Roosevelt continued, "this was normal and usual."

"In recent decades, however, we have come to realize the implications to the public—to the individual men and women, to businessmen, big and little, and even to government itself—resulting from the ownership by any group of the right to dispose of wealth which was granted to us collective by nature herself. * * * "

WOULD ENLARGE SUPREME COURT

Lawyers Consider Proposal to Unite Branches Of State Body

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 18.—A proposed constitutional amendment which would eliminate the Kansas City, Springfield and St. Louis appellate courts and consolidate them with an enlarged supreme court was laid before the lawyers of Missouri today.

The suggested change was advanced by the state judicial council, established by the supreme court to study and recommend improvements in the judicial system. Frank H. Sullivann St. Louis attorney, is chairman of the council.

The proposed amendment is being sent, in pamphlet from, to each member of the bar in Missouri. Later on the judical council plans to take a referendum among lawyers to determine whether the amendment should be submitted to the voters.

The new plan would create a supreme court with 16 members, instead of seven as at present.

Would Fill Out Terms

Judges of the three appellate courts which would be abolished would become judges of the supreme court for the terms for which they were elected.

At the expiration of these terms three supreme court judges would be elected in each of the three former appellate court districts. The other seven supreme court judges would be elected by statewide vote.

The proposal differs substantially from one submitted by the judicial council two years ago relative to appellate litigation. It would have expanded the jurisdiction of the appellate courts. The movement was dropped when it failed to receive the general support of the lawyers.

The new proposal would provide for a court en banc consisting of the chief justice and six other judges, which would sit at Jefferson City. The court would be authorized to provide for divisions, which would sit at such times and places as the court directed. Not less than three judges would constitute a division.

The amendment also would abolish terms of court, which would be deemed always open.

The supreme court would be authorized to designate circuit judges to sit in any of the judicial circuits, contemporaneously with the regular judges.

Other members of the judicial council are: Roy D. Williams of Boonville; Leslie A. Welch and Judge Brown Harris of Kansas City; Judge E. L. Alford of Hannibal; James A. Finch of Cape Girardeau and John R. Bake of Fulton.

FIRE AT COHEN JUNK YARD SUNDAY

Fire of unknown origin did more than $2,500 damage to a junk yard and sheds of Harris Cohen on West Cooper street just east of Grand avenue, about 12:40 o'clock Sunday afternoon.

The fire started in a shed adpoining a large barn and spread through the barn and through several other sheds before the fire could be brought under control by the fire fighters. When they arrived on the scene the garage-shed where the fire originated was a mass of flames which were being fanned by a strong breeze from the south.

Two large drums of gasoline in one of the sheds exploded and caused the fire to roar and spread faster. A shed a short distance from the main barn which housed some acetylene tanks caught fire and the tanks exploded causing the roof on this shed to cave in and burn like a furnace.

Two lines of hose were laid and the firemen fought hard for nearly an hour before the blaze was checked. In one barn was stored some new and used lumber and in another where a Dodge truck was stored were several old tires which caught fire, all of which made it difficult for a time for the firemen.

The Dodge truck and another old truck in the rear of the barn were destroyed in the fire.

Mr. Cohen notified Fire Chief John G. Lueck he had only a small amount of insurance to cover the loss on the Dodge truck, and did not believe he had any on the buildings.

MADMAN FIRES ON N. Y. POLICE

'Cop' Hater In Two-Gun Attack Is Shot Down

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—Police delved into obscure phases of simple psychiatry today attempting to determine what started Charles San Filippo on the "cop-hating" career that ended in his death as the climax of a two-gun attack on 250 policemen at a Central Park memorial service.

Thousands of horrified Sabbath strollers saw the madman, about 40, precipitate a brief pitched battle in which five persons—two of them policemen—were wounded.

"I was going to try to kill as many cops as I could," he admitted as he lay dying with at least 20 police bullet wounds in his head.

He came upon the outdoor memorial almost unnoticed yesterday afternoon, packing a rifle and shotgun, and wearing crude, bullet-proof breast-plates. A speaker had finished his eulogy after a reading of the roll of the dead, answered by "absent" as each name was called; a light flickered out, too, at the name of each dead policeman. Then—shots from a double-barrel shotgun shattered the solemnity and in a wink most of the 250 policemen drew service revolvers and poured volleys at the retreating figure, who was firing the rifle as he ran.

Gasps Dying Hatred

San Filippo slumped to the ground and gasped his dying hatred of cops, a hatred evidenced in two traffic summonses found in his possession, and in clippings at the family apartment in the Bronx. Some of the clippings told of the exploits of a "phantom of the Bronx" who killed two patrolmen and has fired on others in recent months. Other detailed the deaths of other policemen. Pencil marks encircled the officers' names and derogatory remarks about them were written in the margins.

At his home police learned, too, that the dead madman's father died of a stroke late Saturday, just a few hours before San Filippo left home, the guns unnoticed, saying he was going to mail a letter. The shotgun belonged to his father, who used it on hunting expeditions.

Police said San Filippo's relatives told of his repeated wishes to die ever since he was injured by a motor car some 15 years ago. He formerly had been a cab driver.

Beyond the clippings, police found little evidence of why or when San Filippo started hating cops. Police records carried no indication that he ever had been arrested.

The wounded policemen, neither critically injured, are Lieut. James P. McDonnell, called the "most decorated man on the force" for his 14 citations and five commendations among other honors, and Patrolman Francis Lynch. Both are 38.

Louis Popernick, a bystander, was the only one critically wounded. A bullet was removed from his abdomen last night and his condition was reported as "fair."

BLIND GROOM HOPES TO SEE BRIDE

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 16—(AP)—A blind youth whom surgery failed to aid materially found new courage today in his battle for sight from the bride he never has seen, while a middle-aged minister, his vision partially restored, longed for the first clear look at his wife and daughter.

The blind bridegroom, undaunted by an unsuccessful operation, was John Terry O'Connell, 21, honeymooning today with the former Betty Stotcher, 19. They fell in love three years ago when she was a reader for the sightless in a Berkeley school.

O'Connell, tall, blond and handsome University of California at Berkeley student, said he hoped some day he would be able to see his wife, who guided his hand as he slipped a wedding ring on her finger in Berkeley yesterday.

He will take further treatments for an eye ailment that has blinded him since childhood.

The Rev. U. E. Harding, Nazarene minister of Portland, Ore., was one step closer today to his first clear vision of his wife and 27-year-old daughter, Evelyn, has been blinded 43 of his 45 years.

Yesterday he left the hospital where on Aug. 3 the clear cornea from an elderly dead woman's eye replaced the diseased "window" in his own eye in a rare and delicate operation. He already can distinguish objects.

"When the bandages are off," said the cleric, "I want to see my wife and daughter. Then I want to look upon the faces of my congregation. Finally, I shall gaze upon the mountains and the sea."

A young Sacremento pianist, Arthur Morton, who received new cornea tissue from the same woman that supplied the Rev. Harding, Mrs. Margaret Carr, 81, of Berkeley, will leave the hospital today—his vision also partly restored after six years of darkness.

RAILROAD MAN DIES ON WAY TO SEDALIA

The body of James Merle Hamilton, 40, formerly employed on an extra gang of the Missouri Pacific railroad was found early Monday morning lying on the railroad right-of-way a mile and a half north of Lees Summit.

The badly mangled body was found by a section crew, S. F. Parker, Lees Summit, foreman, when it began an inspection of tracks about 7 o'clock that morning.

Acquaintances in Lees Summit said that Sunday night Hamilton had said he was going to hop a freight to Sedalia to get his pay check. T. H. Payne, division roadmaster for the Missouri-Pacific said Monday night that Hamilton was not employed by the railroad at the time and that no details of the accident were known.

Marriage Licenses Issued

Green Clay Surleer, Jr., and Thelma Wolfe, both of Slater.

James Riley Murray and Troy Fay Brown, both of Sedalia.

Paul Armstrong, Playwright Native Missourian Rose High In Field Of Drama.

This week in Missouri history commemorates the death of a brilliant and successful Missourian who for eight years was one of America's most popular playwrights. He was Paul Armstrong, a native of Kidder, Missouri, located on the rolling prairies of Caldwell county, and well known as the home of Thayer College, Kidder Institute, and Kidder Junior College. Now it is likewise noted in the literary history of the state as the birthplace of this outstanding journalist and playwright.

Armstrong, whose literary attainment won for him a place in Who's Who in America and in the Dictionary of American Biography, was born in Kidder on April 25, 1869, and died at his home in New York City on August 30, 1915. His parents moved to Bay City, Michigan, where young Armstrong graduated from the public schools and became, at the age of twenty-one, a licensed master of steamboats on the Great Lakes. For a time he was employed on a vessel plying between Chicago and St. Joseph, Michigan. During this time he wrote numerous short stories which were invariably rejected by the publishers, but undaunted, he resolved to enter belles letters through the avenue of journalism.

With this determination to write, Armstrong resigned his position with the steamboat company and went to Buffalo, where he secured a position on the Express, later working on the Courier and the News. In 1896, he went to Chicago, and from there to New York, pursuing his journalistic career.,

Wrote For Theatre

In the meantime he had become interested in writing for the theatre. In 1904 he abandoned newspaper work to write plays and sketches. His first play, Just a Day Dream, was favorably received by the critics and was produced by a Boston stock company. Then followed a number of plays and sketches that were produced without success, until Blue Grass, a vaudeville sketch, received popular recognition. The real reward for perseverance came in 1905, however, when the Heir to the Hoorah was produced in New York with amazing success. Stimulated by the ovation the play received, Armstrong soon became one of America's most prolific and popular playwrights.

The popularity of this Missouri born author is attested by the reception his plays received in New York theatres. At least one of his plays appeared each season from 1907 until 1914. Among the best known of these are Society and the Bull-dog and Via Wireless, produced in 1908; Alias Jimmy Valentine, which appeared in 1910; and The Escape, given in 1913. One of the last of his plays to be successfully produced was The Bludgeon which was acted in New York in 1914.

After writing Alias Jimmy Valentine, which was a swift moving story of the pardon, reform and business success of a Sing Sing prisoner, Armstrong became interested in criminals, went into Judge Rosalsky's court and obtained permission to "adopt" James Brown, a confirmed lawbreaker, who was up for sentence. The experiment did not work and within a few months Brown was sentenced to Sing Sing for two and a half years.

Armstrong was an effective story-teller, possessed a grim sense of humor, and invariably developed a strong climax. Literary form was often discounted in his plays however, in an effort to obtain dramatic effect. He was definitely one of the last writers in his field who was able to compete successfully with the moving-picture theatres.

He married Rella Abel of Kansas City, in 1899. On December 10, 1913, she obtained a divorce, and two days later, he married Kittie Cassidy, who had starred in a number of his plays. Later, as Catharine Calvert, she became prominent as a moving-picture actress. Armstrong died of heart disease in New York, on August 30, 1915, twenty-three years ago this week.

STUDENT HELPS IN REED CAPTURE

The ability to observe on the part of Frank Edwin Wellman, 19 year old LaMonte student, who commutes to Warrensburg to the State Teachers College daily, is largely responsible for the arrest of Leslie Reed, Negro, wanted on a murder charge.

Wednesday morning as Wellman was enroute to Warrensburg to school he stopped at the Chevalier filling station. He noticed, but paid no attention at the time, to a Negro, purchasing some bologna.

Returning home that evening he again stopped in the Chevalier place and there learned a hunt had been in progress all day for Reed, believed to have hidden in the cornfields by the side of the road. Instantly Wellman recalled having seen the same Negro he had seen in the morning but this time he was crossing the viaduct at Knob Noster as he (Wellman) returned from school that evening. He called G. L. Reynolds, constable of LaMonte, who drove to that location and on in through Knob Noster. No one recalled having seen the Negro pass through Knob Noster and Reynolds, thinking he might have missed him, turned back. He picked up L. W. Patton and Woodrow DeLapp and they started towards Montserrat, coming upon Reed on the viaduct west of Knob Noster. He gave no resistance when arrested, and was brought to the Pettis county jail.

Judge Malcolm Scott, who raises fine hogs, received a message Saturday reading as follows: "Completed showing today, won all champions except junior at two fairs (Great Falls and Billings, Mont). Hogs fine. No flu. Grandma walking, feeling fine. Roberts Hunter."

Roberts Hunter of Knob Noster, is showing the hogs at the fairs, and "Grandma," referred to, is one of the sows which has been given that nickname.

The animals are being shown this week in Davenport, Iowa, and will then be brought to Sedalia for the Missouri State Fair.
